

How will the state treat an application listing an identifying number that is either incomplete or illegible? If uncorrected (see below), the applicant's registration will be considered "incomplete," but if she is otherwise eligible, she will still be able to vote upon showing identification before Election Day or at the polls.

Matching Against Motor Vehicle and Social Security Records

What fields from the voter registration form will the state seek to match to motor vehicle or Social Security records? Identifying number, first name, last name, date of birth, and address.⁸

How precise is the match standard? In matching information from a form with a driver's license number, New York uses an exact match standard for each individual field, but then leaves the county official flexible discretion to determine how many fields must match for the record to be verified. New York will use the standard AAMVA criteria for matching information on forms with SSN digits: exact match of the SSN-4, first name, last name, month of birth, and year of birth.

How much human intervention is involved in determining whether information is matched? For matching information on forms with a driver's license number, the system will return a list of records with an exact match of the driver's license number and an indication, for each other field matched, of whether the match was exact (the system will not, apparently, return the contents of the field itself). The county official then has the discretion to determine whether a matching record exists among the possible matches returned. The process for matching records with SSN digits is fully automated.

Description of matching process: Currently, New York counties submit, either individually or in batches, records of voters registering with an elections official to the state Board of Elections, which automatically submits the records to the DMV. For matching information on forms with a driver's license number, the DMV will return a list of all records that match the driver's license number exactly, and an indication for each other field matched of whether the match was exact (the system will not, apparently, return the contents of the field itself). The county official then has the discretion to determine whether a matching record exists among the possible matches returned.

Information on forms listing SSN digits will be automatically checked against the SSA database through the standard AAMVA process: the county elections official will submit an entered record to the DMV database, which will automatically submit the appropriate fields to the SSA and return a code indicating whether the record was successfully matched or not.

For any record returned as unverified, the county elections official will resubmit the record to ensure that the information was correctly entered.⁹

What are the consequences if the state cannot find a match? If uncorrected (see below), and if the applicant is a first-time voter registering by mail, the application will be considered “incomplete,” but the applicant may vote upon showing identification before Election Day or at the polls.¹⁰

Notice and Opportunity to Resolve Errors

Does the applicant have the opportunity to correct a missing or incomplete identifying number, without submitting a new form? No. The applicant may submit a new form with correct information at any point before Election Day.

Does the applicant have the opportunity to resolve a failed match, without submitting a new form? No. The applicant may submit a new form with verifiable information at any point before Election Day.

If information on an otherwise timely application is corrected after the voter registration deadline, is the correction still timely? Yes. The applicant may correct information at any point before Election Day.¹¹

Description of notice and correction process: The county elections official will attempt to notify an applicant whose identifying number is missing, incomplete, illegible, or unverified. All counties will attempt to contact the applicant at least twice by mail; some will attempt contact by phone as well.¹² The applicant may attempt to resolve the error by submitting a new form with valid information at any point; the correction will appear on the poll books if it is made before the poll books are printed. If the identifying number cannot be verified, the individual will have to provide identification before Election Day or at the polls.

Identification Requirements at the Polls

Who must provide identification at the polls? Any first-time voter registering by mail whose identifying number has not been verified, and any voter who submitted an application with a missing or incomplete identifying number who has not previously presented a copy of valid identification to a county elections official, must provide identification at the polls.¹³ Every voter must also sign her name, and this signature must be matched to the signature on the registration records.¹⁴

Forms of ID:

1st-time voter registering by mail without verified identifying number, or any voter with missing/incomplete number:	current and valid photo ID current utility bill w/ name, address bank statement w/ name, address government check w/ name, address paycheck w/ name, address other gov't document w/ name, address

What forms of identification are accepted? Current and valid photo ID, or a copy of a current utility bill, bank statement, government check, paycheck, or other government document that shows the voter’s name and address.¹⁵

What are the consequences of failing to show identification? The voter may cast a provisional ballot.¹⁶ The ballot will be counted if the voter is determined to be properly registered in the appropriate jurisdiction, and if the name, address, date of birth, and signature on the provisional ballot envelope match the information provided at registration.¹⁷
