Dear Chairmen and Ranking Members,

We write to request that the Committee on the Judiciary, Committee on Homeland Security, and Committee on Oversight and Reform hold hearings on the continued harm caused by fusion centers to individual privacy and civil liberties. Most recently, documents obtained from the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) indicate that DHS provided information that they received from a private firm regarding family separation demonstrations to law enforcement agencies participating in fusion centers across America. From large events in New York City and Los Angeles to small cities like Aberdeen, South Dakota and Covington, Louisiana, information was shared across law enforcement agencies about over 600 events that people participated in to show their opposition to the government’s family separation policy. Consistent with the privacy and civil liberties concerns that have been raised regarding fusion centers for years, these documents raise concerns that the Trump administration is using fusion centers to facilitate surveillance of those engaged in First Amendment-protected activities—including those calling for children not to be unlawfully separated from their parents.

DHS’s gathering and distribution of information about people protesting family separation was revealed in documents obtained by the American Immigration Council, National Immigrant

Justice Center, Kids in Need of Defense, Women’s Refugee Commission, Florence Immigrant and Refugee Rights Project, and WilmerHale in response to a Freedom of Information Act requests.^[1] DHS has asserted that the information mining and compilation was done by a private company with which DHS had no contract with at that time, yet DHS shared this purportedly “unsolicited” information with fusion centers across the country, claiming that it was required to do so.^[2] As a result, information regarding over 600 demonstrations that took place during the height of public protests against the separation of thousands of children from their parents was shared across law enforcement agencies, from the Federal Bureau of Investigations and Immigration and Customs Enforcement to local law enforcement.^[3]

These revelations, while deeply disturbing, are not surprising. For years, fusion centers have been the cause of bipartisan concern, both for their ineffectiveness and their civil liberties violations. They have varied widely in their activities, in part due to their divergence from their statutory purpose, raising significant privacy and civil liberties concerns due to their excessive secrecy, lack of clear supervision, wholesale data collection and manipulation, and the proven risk of widespread data sharing and surveillance by the military and private sector—data they would not have legally been able to gather on their own.^[4] Government documents have shown that fusion centers yield little intelligence of value and waste resources while trampling on the civil liberties of innocent people.^[5] In 2012, the Senate Homeland Security Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations published a bipartisan report where it found that “DHS-assigned detailees to the fusion centers forwarded “intelligence” of uneven quality – oftentimes shoddy, rarely timely, sometimes endangering citizens’ civil liberties and Privacy Act protections, occasionally taken from already-published public sources, and more often than not unrelated to terrorism.”^[6]

Many fusion centers have targeted communities of color and other marginalized communities, those engaged in First Amendment-protected activities, and those engaged in activities the government perceives to be controversial. This unjustified focus includes scrutiny of historically black colleges and universities, which one state’s fusion center described as “radicalization nodes;” basic religious accommodations for Muslims in America; and, protestors on both sides of the abortion debate.^[7] DHS has also used fusion centers to monitor those engaged in protest and organizing, like Black Lives Matter.^[8] And now, this targeting has been extended to those exercising their First Amendment rights to urge the government to keep children with their parents.

It is crucial that Congress hold hearings on the use of fusion centers to share information regarding those engaged in First Amendment-protected activities—including family separation protests, as well as the standards used to determine what information is being shared and when. The monitoring of family separation protests is just the tip of the iceberg in the longstanding concerns regarding privacy and civil liberties.

Subject: LookingGlass Cyber Threat Center - 'Family Separation Day Protests' in U.S., on June 30th

Good Afternoon,

LookingGlass has compiled a spreadsheet for State Fusion Centers detailing over 600 planned 'Family Separation Day Protests' across the US on June 30. These originated from Cyber Threat Center (CTC) and are broken out by City and State; they provide physical location and the Facebook Event ID.

Kind Regards,
