

Rural Counties, State Prisons, and ICU Beds

This is an analysis of the adult state Department of Corrections controlled-incarcerated population in every state and how that compares to the number of ICU beds in each county where the facility is located as well as the percentage of that county that is incarcerated.

- The numbers do not include juvenile facilities or juvenile offenders, transition/re-entry centers, work release centers (boot camps, work camps, farms, etc.). Public data was not available for Missouri, North Carolina, Texas, and Wyoming.
- All state prison population data and institution data come from state DOC websites. If data is missing, its public DOC source was unavailable.
- The county population data is from the Census Bureau's American Community Survey, which counts incarcerated individuals as residents of the county they are incarcerated in. See: <https://www.census.gov/newsroom/blogs/director/2010/03/so-how-do-you-handle-prisons.html>.
- The ICU bed data is from the Kasier Family Foundation. See: <https://khn.org/news/as-coronavirus-spreads-widely-millions-of-older-americans-live-in-counties-with-no-icu-beds/#lookup>.
- In some cases, the DOC data updates daily; therefore, the "Population" may not exactly match the data represented on future dates.

Rural Counties State Prison Analysis:

- Rural counties are defined as counties of less than 50,000 residents.
- The datasets do not include contracted mental health or drug treatment beds (they do include any state-run treatments). The data also does not include other law enforcement agency contracted beds in jails, out-of-state beds, or beds from state police, etc.
- The data includes private prisons.
- The data does not include closed/closing prisons that no longer have a general population.
- The data also do not include any incomplete data.
