[Anderson]: "I learned to play ball, here, at the YMCA.

My father was a baptist preacher, my mother a nurse, so the basketball scholarship I earned allowed me to go to college, and later on the leadership scholarship to law school. For 23 years, I've tried hundreds of cases, representing people and businesses across Alabama.

I chaired the Alamabama Ethics Commission, making tough decisions against some very powerful politicians, some I knew and liked, but I went by the evidence not politics. And today I serve on the Bar Commission and we punish dishonest lawyers. Now I'm running for the Supreme Court for higher standards of ethics and I won't be a vote for trial lawyers or big corporations. I remember where I came from and I want my children to remember I tried to give something back. If you honor me with your vote,

I will serve with honor."
