Permanent disenfranchisement for at least some felony offenders, unless government approves individual rights restoration

Alabama: People with certain felony convictions involving moral turpitude can apply to have their voting rights restored upon completion of sentence and payment of fines and fees; people convicted of some specific crimes are permanently barred from voting.

Arizona: People convicted of one felony can have their voting rights restored upon completion of sentence, including all prison, parole, and probation terms and payment of legal financial obligations. People convicted of two or more felonies are permanently barred from voting unless pardoned or restored by a judge.

Delaware: Felony offenders can have their voting rights restored five years after completion of sentence and payment of fines and fees. People who are convicted of certain disqualifying felonies are permanently disenfranchised.

Maryland: Voting rights are restored post-sentence\(^1\) after a first conviction for an “infamous crime.” A three-year waiting period is imposed post-sentence for individuals with subsequent convictions. People who are convicted of a second or subsequent violent crime are permanently disenfranchised.

Mississippi: People who are convicted of one of ten disqualifying offenses are permanently disenfranchised. Others never lose the right to vote.

Nevada: The right to vote is automatically restored to first-time offenders of non-violent crimes upon completion of sentence. Repeat offenders and those convicted of violent crimes cannot vote unless pardoned or granted a restoration of civil rights from the court in which they were convicted.

Tennessee: People convicted of felonies after 1981 can have their voting rights restored if they have completed their full sentences, paid all restitution, and are current with child support payments. People convicted of some categories of crimes cannot regain the right to vote unless pardoned.

Wyoming: First-time nonviolent felony offenders can have their rights restored five years after completion of sentence. Repeat offenders and those convicted of violent crimes are permanently barred from voting, unless pardoned or restored to rights by the Governor.
