Plaintiffs,

v.

Case No. 2:12-cv-03401-SDW-MCA

THE CITY OF NEW YORK,

Defendant.

DECLARATION OF GLENN KATON

I, Glenn Katon, hereby declare,

1. I represent the Plaintiffs in the above-captioned case and have been admitted by this Court to practice pro hac vice.

2. I submit this declaration as part of Plaintiffs' response to the defendant City of New York's motion to dismiss for lack of standing and, in particular, to the extrinsic facts submitted by the Defendant found at paragraph three of the Declaration of Peter Farrell (ECF No. 15-2). Mr. Farrell there states that the NYPD reports discussed in the First Amended Complaint were the subject of a series of articles by the Associated Press. Defendants cite these extrinsic facts to argue that Plaintiffs' lack standing because their injuries are fairly traceable only to the AP's reporting, not to the NYPD policy and practices that were the subject of those reports and of this lawsuit. See Defendants' Memorandum of Law in Support of its Motion to Dismiss, at 17-18 (ECF No. 15-1). Plaintiffs assert that these extrinsic facts fail, as a matter of law, to undermine Plaintiffs' standing. See Plaintiff's Opposition to Defendants' Motion to Dismiss, § III.B. I nevertheless submit this declaration as an alternative to that legal argument in order to supplement the record with statements from senior New York City officials and others that independently acknowledge, endorse, and describe in detail the policies and practices upon which Plaintiffs base their claims. These facts, and the exhibits attached hereto, are submitted solely for the purpose of supporting Plaintiffs' alternative argument that their injuries are "fairly traceable" to the Defendant because New York City officials have perpetuated and amplified the harms suffered by the Plaintiffs after the press first revealed the NYPD's unlawful program. See id.

3. Since the AP began publishing reports regarding the NYPD's policy and practice of targeting Muslims for surveillance, senior New York City officials have acknowledged and endorsed the NYPD's tactics. These acknowledgements have largely confirmed the AP's reporting, and have propagated and amplified the harms suffered by the Plaintiffs as a result of the NYPD's unlawful activities. For example:

- a. Mayor Michael Bloomberg, speaking on the radio, acknowledged that the NYPD engages in surveillance not based upon any allegations of wrongdoing: "When there's no lead, you're just trying to get familiar with what's going on, where people might go and where people might be to say something." "And you want to listen. If they're going to give a public speech, you want to know where they do it." See Adam Goldman & Matt Apuzzo, NYPD docs: 'Focus' scrutiny on Muslim Americans, Assoc. Press, March 9, 2012 (a true and correct copy is attached hereto as Exhibit A).
- b. In response to criticism of the NYPD for operating in New Jersey, Mayor Bloomberg has acknowledged and endorsed the NYPD's practice: "The police department can follow leads and threats wherever they come from. [...] They can go into any state." See Adam Goldman & Matt Apuzzo, Consequences for Security as NYPD-FBI Rift Widens, Assoc. Press, Mar. 20, 2012 (a true and correct copy is attached as Exhibit B).

- c. Discussing the NYPD's surveillance program in a television interview, Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly acknowledged that the NYPD created the Newark Report, which is described in Plaintiffs' complaint: "We did that demographic study, if you will, in Newark with the acquiescence, with the knowledge of law enforcement personnel in Newark, and we gave them a copy." See Interview of Raymond Kelly by Josh Robin, NY1, Mar. 22, 2012, available at http://www.ny1.com/content/158115/ny1-online--police-commissioner-kellydefends-nypd-surveillance-of-muslims (last visited Jan 24, 2013).
- d. In the same interview, Police Commissioner Kelly acknowledged that the NYPD creates maps identifying Muslim-owned business and endorsed the practice: "I think this is the type of information that helps us do our job. It gives us a total picture, context, of a particular neighborhood. But if you spin it out that it is somehow spying, I can see someone being annoyed by it. And I think that's part of the issue." Id.
- e. In sworn deposition testimony, Thomas Galati, Commanding Officer of the NYPD's Intelligence Division, confirmed many details about the surveillance activities of the NYPD Intelligence Division's Demographics Unit/Zone Assessment Unit that had previously been reported by the Associated Press. Deposition of Thomas Galati, Handschu v. Special Services Division, No. 71-cv-2203 (S.D.N.Y. June 28, 2012) (a true and correct copy is attached hereto as Exhibit C), For example, Mr. Galati acknowledged that the "ancestries of interest" identified in the NYPD reports published by the Associated Press among which are "American Black Muslim" and countries that together comprise 80% of the world's Muslim population – are largely consistent with the current targets of the NYPD Intelligence Division's surveillance. Id. at 26. Mr. Galati also acknowledged that such "countries of concern" were identified on the basis of Muslim religion: "Islamics that have been radicalized through violence that committed [attacks in New York and throughout the world] came from countries. Those countries were identified." Id. at 25. Mr. Galati's deposition testimony confirmed in significant detail the supervision, training, function, and tactics of the NYPD unit that conducted some or all of the surveillance in question. His testimony acknowledged that, as reported by the AP, the NYPD surveilled mosques, see, e.g., id. at 46 ("The purpose of the Demographics Unit and the Zone Assessment Unit was to identify mosques, to identify the ethnic community that would be associated with the mosques"), surveilled commercial establishments, see, e.g., id. at 71, and documented conversations of Muslims discussing world events, see e.g., id. at 69-79. His testimony generally confirms the AP's prior reports that the NYPD surveillance was targeted at the Muslim community in particular. See, e.g. id. at 36 (program intended to discover where "Islamics radicalized toward violence would hide.").

4. A former NYPD informant has spoken publicly in great detail about his part in the NYPD's policy and practice of surveilling Muslims on the basis of religion. This disclosure independently revealed the NYPD's practice of targeting innocent Muslims and contributes to the stigma caused by the program by making the public more aware that Plaintiffs are considered suspects by the NYPD simply based upon their religion. See Adam Goldman & Matt Apuzzo, Informer: NYPD Paid Me To 'Bait' Muslims, Assoc. Press, Oct. 23, 2012 (a true and correct copy is attached hereto as Exhibit D).

5. The statements of senior City officials have also communicated the message that the Muslim community as a whole is properly a target for suspicion and surveillance, contributing to the significant stigma that has resulted from the NYPD's discriminatory policy and practices. For example:

- a. Mayor Bloomberg, responding to responding to criticism of the NYPD's spying on Muslim student groups throughout the Northeast, stated "'The police department goes where there are allegations. And they look to see whether those allegations are true." Adam Goldman & Matt Apuzzo, NYPD Built Secret Files on Mosques Outside NY, Assoc. Press, Feb. 22, 2012 (quoting Mayor Bloomberg) (a true and correct copy is attached hereto as Exhibit E). But, as reported by the AP and alleged in the Plaintiffs' complaint, there are no allegations of terrorism in the NYPD's reports, which make clear on their face that the police were only interested in locations associated with the Muslim population. Id. The implication of Mr. Bloomberg's remarks, then, is that all Muslims who were surveilled by the NYPD were proper targets of investigation, even though they were targeted only because they are Muslim.
- b. Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly, discussing the NYPD's program targeting Muslims for surveillance, has said "If you poll these issues they don't seem to be an unpopular position on the part of most of the public," and "We're going to continue to do what we have to do to protect the city." See Tina Moore, Rocco

Parascandola & Corky Siemaszko, Mayor Bloomberg Defends NYPD Spying on Muslims Calling it Legal, Appropriate and Constitutional, N.Y. Daily News, Feb. 24, 2012 (a true and correct copy is attached as Exhibit F). These comments not only endorse the NYPD's surveillance targeting Muslims, but also send the unmistakable message that surveillance of Muslims is justified because the Muslim community poses a threat.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

Executed on January 25, 2013, at San Francisco, California.

NYPD.docs: 'Focus' scrutiny on Muslim Americans

ADAM GOLDMAN and MATT APUZZO

March 9, 2012

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Police Department collected information on businesses owned by second- and third-generation Americans specifically because they were Muslims, according to newly obtained secret documents. They show in the clearest terms yet that police were monitoring people based on religion, despite claims from Mayor Michael Bloomberg to the contrary.

The NYPD has faced intense criticism from Muslims, lawmakers — and even the FBI — for widespread spying operations that put entire neighborhoods under surveillance. Police put the names of innocent people in secret files and monitored the mosques, student groups and businesses that make up the Muslim landscape of the northeastern U.S.

Bloomberg has defended his department's efforts, saying they have kept the city safe, were completely legal and were not based on religion.

"We don't stop to think about the religion," Bloomberg said at a news conference in August after The Associated Press began revealing the spying. "We stop to think about the threats and focus our efforts there."

In late 2007, however, plainclothes officers in the department's secretive Demographics Unit were assigned to investigate the region's Syrian population. Police photographed businesses and eavesdropped at lunch counters and inside grocery stores and pastry shops. The resulting document listed no threat. And though most people of Syrian heritage living in the area were Jewish, Jews were excluded from the monitoring.

"This report will focus on the smaller Muslim community," the report said.

Similarly, police excluded the city's sizable Coptic Christian population when photographing, monitoring and eavesdropping on Egyptian businesses in 2007, according to the police files.

"This report does not represent the Coptic Egyptian community and is merely an insight into the Muslim Egyptian community of New York City," the NYPD wrote.

Many of those under surveillance were American-born citizens whose families have been here for the better part of a century.

"The majority of Syrians encountered by members of the Demographics Unit are second- or even third-generation Syrian Americans," the Syrian report said. "It is unusual to encounter

The AP has posted the documents at http://apne.ws/ABtsAH and http://apne.ws/A1s5BQ and http://apne.ws/xUlmEQ .

The Demographics Unit was conceived in secret years ago as a way to identify communities where terrorists might hide and spot potential problems early. If the plainclothes officers, known as "rakers," overheard anti-American sentiment or violent rhetoric, they flagged it for follow-up investigation.

If police, for example, ever received a tip that an Egyptian terrorist was plotting an attack, investigators looking for him would have the entire community already on file. They would know where he was likely to pray, who might rent him a cheap room, where he'd find a convenient Internet cafe and where he probably would buy his groceries.

As a result, many people were put into police files, not for criminal activities but because they were part of daily life in their neighborhoods. Shopkeepers were named in police files, their ethnicities listed. Muslim college students who attended a rafting trip or discussed upcoming religious lectures on campus were cataloged. Worshippers arriving at mosques were photographed and had their license plate numbers collected by police.

The Demographics Unit is one example of how, since the 2001 terrorist attacks, the NYPD has transformed itself into one of the most aggressive domestic intelligence agencies in the country, operating with little oversight and in areas outside the city such as New Jersey.

Speaking Friday, Bloomberg said: "We're doing the right thing. We will continue to do the right thing. We do take every precaution possible to not do anything that ever violates the law. You've just got to be very careful not to take away the rights that we're trying to protect."

And although civil rights lawyers disagree, the legal question isn't expected to be settled soon. In the meantime, the NYPD has become a flashpoint in the debate over the balance between civil rights and security.

U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder told Congress on Thursday he was disturbed by what he's read about the NYPD's surveillance of mosques and Islamic student organizations in New Jersey. "And these are things that are under review at the Justice Department," he said.

Police said they can't afford to become complacent or ignore the reality that Islamic terrorists carried out the 2001 attacks and others. If Muslim neighborhoods feel unfairly singled out, however, it could reinforce the perception that the United States is at war with Islam, which al-Qaida has used as a major recruiting pitch.

Since the AP began reporting on these efforts last year, Bloomberg and the NYPD have offered varying explanations for the clandestine efforts.

At first, police spokesman Paul Browne denied the Demographics Unit existed. When documents proved that it did, Police Commissioner Ray Kelly said his department only follows investigative leads.

For instance, after Moroccans were involved in terrorist attacks overseas, the NYPD photographed and eavesdropped in New York businesses where Moroccans might work, shop and eat.

Asked during a City Council meeting in October whether the NYPD maintained similar documents for Irish and Greek neighborhoods, Kelly replied: "We don't do it ethnically. We do it geographically."

Bloomberg echoed those comments in December.

"The communities, whether they're Muslim or Jewish or Christian or Hindu or Buddhist or whatever, all contribute to this city. We don't target any one of them. We don't target any neighborhood," Bloomberg said.

The AP has since obtained documents outlining NYPD efforts to monitor Albanians, Egyptians and Syrians. Each report focused specifically on ethnicity.

In the case of the Egyptians and Syrians, the reports explicitly focused on Muslims. The Albanian report mentions Albania's diverse religious composition but police only photographed and mapped mosques for the report. There was no indication that criminal leads prompted any of the reports.

In a recent interview on WOR radio, Bloomberg acknowledged for the first time that police were not just following leads, and at times conducted these operations without any indications of criminal wrongdoing.

"When there's no lead, you're just trying to get familiar with what's going on, where people might go and where people might be to say something," Bloomberg said. "And you want to listen. If they're going to give a public speech, you want to know where they do it."

The Damascus Bread and Pastry Shop in Brooklyn, where judges and lawyers from the nearby federal courthouse frequently dine on fresh baklava and rugelach, was listed in police files with other businesses that the NYPD described as "Syrian Locations of Concern." Police noted that the building is owned by a Syrian family, adding: "This location mostly sells Middle Eastern pastries, nuts, foreign newspapers and magazines."

"If they want to check on Damascus Bakery, why not, let them check," said Ghassan Matli, 52, when showed the police documents.

But like many whose businesses were monitored, he said he wishes the NYPD would stop by and talk to him so it would get its information right. The people who owned the store at the time of the report, for instance, were the grandchildren of Syrian immigrants. They had been raised as Catholics.

"If they need help, I will help them," said Matli, who is a Christian. "This is the last country we can go to for freedom and to live in freedom. So if they want, why not? Let them check."

Consequences for security as NYPD-FBI rift widens

March 20, 2012

NEW YORK (AP) — In the fall of 2010, the FBI and New York Police Department were working together on a terrorism investigation on Long Island. The cyber case had been open for more than a year at the U.S. attorney's office in Brooklyn. So, the Justice Department was surprised when, without notice, the NYPD went to federal prosecutors in Manhattan and asked them to approve a search warrant in the case.

The top counterterrorism agent at the FBI in New York at the time, Greg Fowler, was furious. When two agencies don't coordinate, it increases the risk that the investigation and any prosecution could be compromised.

In an email response, Fowler prohibited his agents from sharing information with the NYPD's intelligence unit. He also suspended the weekly management meetings of the Joint Terrorism Task Force, the primary pipeline through which information flows to federal, state and local law enforcement agencies. It slowed to a trickle.

The episode was recalled by current and former NYPD and FBI officials who, like most who discussed this issue, spoke on condition of anonymity to describe sensitive law enforcement cases. It was not merely a low point in a relationship already littered with low points. It highlights how the dysfunctional partnership jeopardizes cases and sometimes national security.

The relationship between the FBI and the NYPD — particularly the NYPD Intelligence Division — is among the most studied collaborations in all law enforcement. In the New York media, the fighting and personalities are frequently covered like a dysfunctional celebrity marriage, with perceived betrayal and reconciliation spilling into the news.

The dispute is not trivial. At its core, it is based on fundamental disagreements between the nation's largest police force and the nation's premier counterterrorism agency. As the NYPD has transformed itself into one of the nation's most aggressive intelligence agencies and has spied on Muslims in ways that would be prohibited for the FBI, the rift has widened.

The result is that, in the United States' largest city, the NYPD and FBI are at times working at cross-purposes. Documents show that the NYPD conducted surveillance on mosques outside its jurisdiction, recording license plates of worshippers as they came and went. On its own, the NYPD has tried its hand at counterintelligence, the clandestine world that within the United States is run by the FBI under a presidential order.

The issue is especially relevant now following criticism from the top FBI agent in New Jersey, who said the NYPD's spying in his state had jeopardized national security because it made people afraid to cooperate with law enforcement.

"When people pull back cooperation, it creates additional risks, it creates blind spots," Michael Ward said. "It hinders our ability to have our finger on the pulse of what's going on around the state, and thus it causes problems."

The NYPD rejects that argument, and New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg has said his department will operate anywhere in the United States if it believes it's necessary to prevent terrorism.

"The police department can follow leads and threats wherever they come from," Bloomberg said, adding that it was all legal. "They can go into any state."

In the world of New York intelligence-gathering, there is perhaps no larger personality than David Cohen, the NYPD's irascible 69-year-old intelligence chief. Cohen was once one of the CIA's most senior analysts. To an analyst, one of the major pitfalls to be avoided is slipping into groupthink. When everyone endorses the conventional way of thinking, problems often arise.

Cohen similarly doesn't want the NYPD falling in line behind the FBI, according to those who have worked with him. The NYPD's lesson from the 9/11 terror attacks was that it could not trust counterterrorism to the federal government, so Cohen wants his team developing its own intelligence and chasing its own cases; if the FBI is doing the same thing, they eventually can combine their efforts.

Tensions between the FBI and local police are nothing new. Around the country, police grouse that the FBI snatches their biggest cases. The FBI complains that police don't alert the federal government early enough on big cases.

New York is supposed to be different. The NYPD is perhaps the premier police force in the nation. No other department comes close to the NYPD's manpower. No other city can rival its team of counterterrorism analysts, language capabilities or stable of officers working overseas.

New York was the first city to form a Joint Terrorism Task Force, a collaboration of federal and local agencies that has been replicated in cities nationwide. The NYPD has hundreds of officers assigned to that task force, working side by side with the FBI.

When the NYPD Intelligence Division, the secretive squad that answers to Cohen, and the FBI work together, they have produced strong cases. When the FBI was keeping tabs on two New Jersey men whose rhetoric was becoming increasingly violent, it was an undercover NYPD intelligence officer who helped make a case that sent the men to prison.

But the intelligence division often operates independently. The FBI, for example, says it was neither involved with nor aware of a 2007 NYPD intelligence operation that photographed and catalogued every mosque in Newark, N.J., and cavesdropped inside Muslim-owned businesses there. The FBI also did not know that the NYPD was in Paterson, N.J., collecting license plates outside a mosque and taking pictures as people arrived for Friday prayers.

"They think their jurisdiction is the world. Their jurisdiction is New York City," New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie, the state's former top federal prosecutor, said recently. "My concern is this kind of obsession that the NYPD seems to have that they're the masters of the universe."

The NYPD's top lawyer, Andrew Schaffer, said New York police were not acting as police officers outside the city.

Police said they don't have to notify anyone of such operations.

"They don't exercise police power, they don't make arrests, they don't conduct searches, they don't execute search warrants," Schaffer told reporters recently. "That is beyond our power outside of our defined jurisdiction. But there's no prohibition on traveling to, residing in or investigating within the United States."

In May 2008, a young man named Abdel Hameed Shehadeh came to the attention of the NYPD as part of another investigation. Shehadeh, a former Staten Island resident, had become increasingly radicalized, according to court documents. That spring, he told a close friend about wanting to die as a martyr and wage violent jihad abroad against the U.S. military. He hoped to attend a terrorist training camp in Pakistan, authorities said.

The NYPD knew about Shehadeh. His friend was an NYPD informant.

But the FBI had no idea.

On June 13, the NYPD informant gave Shehadeh a ride to John F. Kennedy International Airport to catch a flight to Pakistan. The informant scrambled to notify the police, who alerted the FBI that a potentially dangerous man was about to fly to Pakistan.

The FBI suggested that the NYPD stop Shehadeh at the airport, current and former federal officials said, but the NYPD worried it would compromise the informant. With no justification for keeping him off the airplane, the FBI let Shehadeh fly but arranged for the Pakistani government to turn him away at the airport and send him home.

NYPD officials say they didn't intentionally withhold information from the FBI. They said they hadn't expected Shehadeh to move so quickly from talk to action. Once he did, police swiftly alerted the federal government. And there is nothing to prohibit the NYPD from starting its own investigations.

At the FBI, the incident reinforced the perception that the NYPD wasn't interested in a partnership. The strongest case the U.S. put together against Shehadeh focused on charges of lying to investigators. He faces up to eight years in prison.

At the NYPD, the FBI's concerns about the Shehadeh case are chalked up to the inevitable strains that sometimes occur in policing. NYPD officials promised to work more closely with the FBI, to share information earlier, federal and city officials said. FBI officials, too, promised to be more open about their cases. The goal was to make sure something like that didn't happen again.

It did.

In 2009, federal prosecutors in Boston charged Terak Mehanna in a terror plot. The Justice Department said he and his friends conspired to travel to Yemen for terrorism training so they could fight the U.S. in Iraq.

While Mehanna was in jail in Boston, a source working with the NYPD was in contact with Mehanna, according to current and former FBI and NYPD officials involved in the case. Such contact with another agency's suspect, who's already been charged, is considered improper.

The NYPD dispatched senior officials to Boston to explain to the Justice Department what happened, according to people briefed on the meeting. The NYPD said the contact with Mehanna was inadvertent, part of an unrelated investigation with clear New York ties.

The FBI asked, how could it be inadvertent when the NYPD was working 200 miles outside its jurisdiction?

In an interview last year, NYPD spokesman Paul Browne made a distinction between the NYPD "making contact" with Mehanna and "having contact" with him.

"We did not initiate any contact," Browne said.

He would not elaborate.

At trial, Mchanna's lawyers asked what the Justice Department knew about the NYPD's contact with Mehanna.

"We are not aware of any such contact," Assistant U.S. Attorney Aloke Chakravarty said.

Mehanna was convicted of terrorism charges in December and awaits sentencing. His lawyers said they still don't know how the NYPD was involved with their client.

As Cohen was expanding his department's counterterrorism mission, documents show that he also steered the NYPD into the murky world of counterintelligence.

Counterintelligence includes spying on other nation's spies inside the United States. Under a 1981 presidential order, that's supposed to be coordinated by the FBL But as home to the United Nations, New York is a major arena for U.S. spy games.

In 2006, documents show, the NYPD focused on the Iranian threat, believing that Iran's government or its proxies, including the Hezbollah terrorist organization, might strike at New York City. It fanned out across the Northeast, looking for Shiite mosques and other places where Iranians might gather. The goals were to spot potential problems and develop informants with ties to Iran and Hezbollah.

In one highly unusual operation, the NYPD recruited a source close to the Iranian Mission at the United Nations, former senior NYPD officials said. Police had tried something similar before, former federal officials said, and crossed paths with the FBI. But this time, the FBI didn't know about it.

The Associated Press is withholding details of the operation for national security reasons.

Normally, agencies coordinate their efforts, a process known as deconfliction. Without it, two investigators might work the same source. One agency's informant might be the target of another agency's investigation. That can undermine cases and hurt both efforts.

Cohen's team recruited the source on its own, the former NYPD officials said.

The source gave the NYPD unique insight into the Iranian mission, a connection that the NYPD hoped would provide them early warning of Iranian collaborators in the city. But it also infringed on the turf of the FBI and the CIA, which have long-standing counterintelligence sources across the diplomatic terrain of New York City.

Cohen and Browne did not return several messages asking whether they had any comment or concerns about the AP reporting on this incident.

NYPD documents also show that police used one of its telephone pole-mounted video cameras to monitor the Saudi Mission, another sensitive diplomatic and counterintelligence location.

Documents also show that the NYPD began surveillance of Gholamzadeh Mahabadi Hossein, an Iranian man working closely with his country's U.N. Mission. Police believed he had technology expertise and ties to the Iranian Revolutionary Guard. Hossein was dubbed "Dasher."

Police put him under surveillance and trained a camera on his home in Queens, according to documents, as part of a secret police action dubbed "Operation Tailgate."

A former NYPD official familiar with Dasher said the NYPD was worried that people like him might be used as an Iranian proxy to launch an attack against New York.

The FBI, too, was well aware of Dasher, according to one former FBI official who worked the Iranian target at the time. To the FBI, Dasher was viewed as a potential spy, never a potential terrorist.

Had the NYPD raised Dasher's name with the Joint Terrorism Task Force, it would have flagged his ties to counterintelligence operations. That never happened.

Dasher has since left the country, officials said. There's no indication that he knew he was being watched. But officials said the incident is an example of how the broader mission the NYPD has taken for itself sometimes puts the department in lanes traditionally occupied by the FBI.

In Dasher's case, the FBI and NYPD were watching the same man. Neither knew what the other was up to.

FBI Director Robert Mueller said conflicts often arise between the bureau and local law enforcement.

"It is not unusual to have that," he recently told a Senate subcommittee. "And my belief is you sit down, you talk about it in private, you get it resolved and you move on."

In August, John Giacalone, a veteran FBI counterterrorism official with Long Island roots, arrived in New York to replace Fowler, who was promoted to run the FBI office in Portland, Ore. Giacalone knew about the FBI's problems with the intelligence division but said the relationship was a clean slate.

One of the first things the FBI did under Giacalone was to examine a terrorism case of the NYPD. It would become one of the most public spats between the FBI and NYPD. And it shows how, even when the two agencies collaborate, their efforts can be undermined by mutual distrust.

The NYPD had been using an informant to keep tabs on Jose Pimentel, a troubled young man whom authorities believed was being inspired to commit violence. But Pimentel had a drug problem and the informant used drugs with Pimentel, who had no known links to al-Qaida or other terrorism groups.

Under Fowler, the FBI said it was not interested in pursuing the case. But as new facts came to light, the FBI spent six weeks reviewing the case alongside the NYPD and city and federal prosecutors, federal officials said. The agencies agreed that Pimental was potentially dangerous and could not be ignored. They decided to move forward in state court, federal officials said.

The NYPD arrested Pimentel on Nov. 20. Authorities said he wanted to attack police and post offices using pipe bombs. Pimentel has since pleaded not guilty to rarely used state-level terrorism charges.

At a news conference, Bloomberg and New York Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly spoke to reporters.

"We had to act quickly yesterday because he was, in fact, putting this bomb together," Kelly said. "He was drilling holes and it would have been not appropriate for us to let him walk out the door with that bomb."

Asked why the FBI wasn't involved, Kelly suggested the federal government moved too slowly for the NYPD.

"There is an assessment process that is engaged in by the federal authorities, the U.S. attorney," Kelly replied. "We just believed we couldn't let it go any further. We had to act."

In an interview with the AP in late January, Giacalone said he had met with all the NYPD's senior leaders when he arrived in New York and found them to be "honest partners."

Nothing has changed that view, he said.

Giacalone said the infighting has to end. Al-Qaida and its franchises might be crippled but they're still a threat. New York is still a target. To protect the city, the NYPD and FBI need each other.

"We are better working together than working apart," Giacalone said. "I am focusing on moving forward. We both recognize the way forward is to work together and to be good partners. The American people would never forgive us if our refusal to share intelligence resulted in a terrorist attack."

2	THOMAS GALATI, called as a
3	witness, having been first duly sworn by a
4	Notary Public of the State of New York, was
5	examined and as follows:
7	MR. EISENSTEIN: I want to put on
8	the record part of the terms in which
9	this deposition is being conducted.
10	We have agreed that the entire
11	deposition is confidential for 30 days
12	after delivery of the transcript to the
13	defendants.
14	So that, you, Peter have the
15	opportunity to review the transcript to
16	determine what, if anything, you and
17	your client feel needs to be kept
18	confidential.
19	30 days after delivery of the
20	transcript, you will identify any
21	portions you want sealed. If there is
22	agreement about sealing, those portions
23	will be sealed. If plaintiff's counsel
24	disagrees, the matter is to be submitted
25	to the court and the portions you have

2	designated are under a protective order
3	pending a decision. That pending a
4	decision on your request, that it be
5	sealed.
6	If a part wishes to append the
7	portion of the deposition transcript to
8	its court's submission, the filing will
9	be done under protective order setting
10	forth a procedure for determining
11	whether the attachment itself shall be
12	sealed and disclosed, outlined in
13	Lugosch, L-U-G-O-S-C-H versus Pyramid
14	Company 435F3D110 second circuit 2006.
15	First of all, I'd like to ascend
16	that that's the agreement that we have
17	made.
18	MR. FARRELL: I concur that the
19	agreement regarding confidentiality I
20	have one question about. I'd like to
21	add, the confidentiality where the five
22	attorneys in the room are not to be
23	disclosed. That's what we mean by
24	confidentiality. You agree?

U.S. LEGAL SUPPORT, INC.

[Page 5] 1 2 MR. FARRELL: We had agreed that 3 we would in 30 days look at the 4 transcript. You and I had a discussion. If I needed additional time to do the 5 review so I would ask that it come 6 7 30 days, I will be in contact with you. 8 Rather than having a trigger, put the 9 transcript on the internet, at least we 10 can confer on that point. 11 MR. EISENSTEIN: Peter, we 12 initially agreed 30. That's fine. Ιf 13 you call prior to the 30 days, you're in 14 the middle of a trial. I'm not going to disclose it. 15 16 If you're otherwise unable to 17 make the decision, we're not going to 18 disclose it. On the other hand, we 19 expect your good faith about not letting 20 that process go on indefinitely. 21 MR. FARRELL: That I concur with 22 upon receiving the transcript. The only 23 part I wasn't sure about is, if there's a disagreement over sealing that part 24 25 that we want to remain confidential.

2	Did you in your recitation put the
3	burden on one of us in particular?
4	MR. EISENSTEIN: Yes, I thought
5	we had agreed that the presumption is to
6	be disclosed. In other words, we
7	started out and plaintiffs did not agree
8	that the presumption was going to be
9	confidential. Because the presumption
10	is to be disclosed, you're the ones that
11	are pushing the rock up the hill about
12	sealing it.
13	In other words, unless you
14	prevail in persuading the court that the
15	section needs to be sealed, then it
16	would be disclosed. Presumption is
17	disclosure, presumption of
18	confidentiality. Look at our exchange
19	of letters. That was one of the things
20	which clearly in my view we agreed upon.
21	MR. FARRELL: I'll reserve my
22	right to look at that. I'm not going to
23	take issue on that. I want to add that
24	this deposition is pursuant to an
25	agreement between the parties to conduct

2	some voluntary discovery in response to
3	counsel's motion of, I believe it is,
4	October of 2011, and that voluntary
5	discovery is set out. The parameters
6	are set out in letter and e-mail
7	correspondence between counsel for the
8	parties and specifically there are at
9	least five letters that are set out.
10	The dates are January 3rd, 2012,
11	January 24, 2012. February 2nd, 2012,
12	February 29, 2012 and March 30, 2000 the
13	1, 12 March 3 0, 2012.
14	While we call this voluntary
15	discovery, we have also reserved our
16	rights regarding the duration of the
17	deposition and that's set forth in those
18	correspondence.
19	Finally, I would like to request
20	review and in signing as contemplating
21	under federal rules civil procedure 30
22	rules 30E, which is a separate request
23	other than or in addition to the 30-day
24	review for the confidentiality.
25	MR. EISENSTEIN: I don't think we

2 1	would have an objection to signing, but
3	if review in signing is going to extend
4 1	che period during which we have agreed
5 t	to keep it confidential, that is
6 (certainly not something that we had
7 (liscussed. I don't see any reason why
8 1	the review for the purpose of signing
9 (can't go on concurrently with your
10 1	review.
11	I'm not sure whether you're
12 5	suggesting that that is an additional
13 I	period of time.
14	MR. FARRELL: I wasn't
15 a	addressing the time period right now.
16 1	What I was addressing was, in addition
17 t	to having the ability to deem things
18 0	confidential, I explicitly want the
19 I	right to review as contemplated under
20 t	the federal rules. That's usually done
21 a	as a review and signing of the
22 t	cranscript under Federal Rule 30,
23	Subsection E.
24	MR. EISENSTEIN: If all you're
25	saying is you want to invoke 30E, this

5	It's governed by the federal

7	about that.
8	You're invoking a rule which
9	exists and applies to any deposition as
10	far as I'm concerned. You can either

3	A I have had depositions taken
4	before, yes.
5	Q I just want to review a couple of б	rules: The court reporter sitting to your
7	left is going to take down every word that
8	you say and every word that I say. Do you
9	understand that?
10	A Yes.
11	Q Do you understand the oath that
12	you take to tell the truth is the same oath
13	that you take in court?
14	A Yes.
15	Q Do you agree to answer the
16	questions out loud with words because the
17	court reporter can't take down nods of the
18	head?
19	A Yes.
20	Q I'm going to ask you to wait
21	until I finish a question so that we get a
22	clean record. Sometimes it's hard to
23	discipline oneself, but if you wait until

	5	A I've always been the commanding
	6	officer of the Intelligence Division.
	7	Q Have you held the position of
	8	supervisor in other commands in the police
	9	department?
	10	A Yes, I have.
	11	Q What other commands and what
	12	supervisory divisions? You don't have
	13	sergeant. Let's just say lieutenant and
	14	above.
	15	A It may be easier if I go
	16	backwards.
	17	Q Go backwards.
	18	A I'm presently the commanding
	19	officer of the Intelligence Division. Prior
	20	to that, I was the commanding officer of the
	21	gang division. Prior to that, I was the
	22	commanding officer of the 46th Precinct.
	23	Prior to that, I was the

	25	Prior to that, I was the

4	officer of the Bronx Tracer Unit and prior
5	to that, I was a lieutenant and I was
6	assigned to the Street Crime Unit.
7	Q What is your formal educational
8	background?
9	A I have a bachelors from Empire
10	State. I've also had other certificate
11	programs from the Harvard Kennedy School and
12	the police management of Columbia
13	University.
14	Q What were those certificate
15	programs in?
16	A Harvard Kennedy School was for
17	state and local I can't think of the name
18	of the actual program, but it was for state
19	and local. Not law enforcement, it was for
20	municipal, I guess.

23	A No, it's related to many

6 A I couldn't give you an e	xact
⁷ date, but I believe it was sometime	in 2010.
⁸ Q What was the reason for	the

¹⁰ A It was a different way t	hat we

20 Q Yes. Who did the Demogra	aphics

2	A The sergeants reported to a

6	A The lieutenant would oversee more
7	than the Demographics Unit. He would
8	oversee other units as well.
9	Q What other units did the
10	lieutenant oversee?
11	A Its changed over the years. I'm
12	not exactly positive. Presently, I believe
13	he oversees the Citywide Debriefing team and
14	the Demographics team, the zone assessment
15	team, and I think that's all he oversees
16	right now. It may have been different at
17	different times.
18	Q You're talking about now when
19	it's called the Zone Assessment Unit, right?
20	A Yes.
21	Q Was that different when it was

	11	Were there persons assigned to
	12	the Demographics Unit who were referred to

	14	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
	15	A The first time when I heard the

	17	However, I believe the term would be the [Page 20] 1 T. Galati 2 was from the AP Article. I've never heard 3 anyone in the division reference mosque 4 crawlers. 5 As I mentioned, Rakers two, that 6 term I've been assigned to since 2006 and 7 I've never heard that term being used other 8 than when it came out in the AP Articles. 9 Are the persons, who have been 0 10 assigned to the Demographics Unit and then 11 to the Zone Assessment Unit, members of the 12 New York City Police Department? 13 By members, I mean graduates of 14 the police department, police academy 15 assigned to shield and tax ID number. 16 Α Yes, they were sworn members of 17 the NYPD. 18 What formal training have the Q 19 persons had, the members of the NYPD 20 assigned to the Demographics Unit? 21 Let me break it down. What 22 formal training did members of the NYPD, 23 assigned to the Demographics Unit, receive 24 before being deployed in the Demographics 25 Unit's activities?

3	A There's a lot of training that
4	officers get when they are in the academy
5	and outside of the academy during the course
6	of their career, you know. You're asking
7	for a specific time?
8	Q Let me be more specific. I'm
9	asking about the training received by
10	members of the force who were assigned to
11	the Demographics Unit.
12	I'm asking about the training
13	received by members of the force who were
14	assigned to the Demographics Unit before
15	they were deployed in their capacity as
16	members of the Demographics Unit.
17	In other words, training
18	specifically to the tasks that they would be
19	undertaking as members of the Demographics
20	Unit?
21	A Well, members of the Demographics
22	Unit/Assessment Unit receive training that
23	we give every year. We go to an annual
24	training, more specifically to their
25	assignments.

[Page 22] 1 T. Galati 2 They are given Handschu training based on the Handschu Guidelines that is 3 4 provided by the legal team that we have 5 assigned to the Intelligence Division. Is there written material 6 0 7 provided to them in connection with the 8 Handschu training? 9 The Handschu Guidelines which is Α 10 in the patrol guideline, written material. 11 I believe the other training does not have 12 any other handouts other than the Handschu Guideline. 13 14 0 Before being deployed as members 15 of the Demographics Unit or the Zone 16 Assessment Unit, do they receive any other 17 training detailing what they are expected to 18 do? 19 Yes, we do inform them. Α If you 20 want to call it a specific training, we do 21 inform them about things that they should 22 do. Yes, I don't want to call it official 23 training, if that's what you're asking for. 24 Official is not the word I'm 25 looking for. They are instructed on what

3	Q Who issues the instructions to
4	them about what they are to do?
5	A Their instructions would come
6	from their direct supervisor. Their
7	instructions could come from me. I do know
8	that our legal counsel has sat down with the
9	entire unit at one point, so instructions
10	has come from our legal council.
11	Q Have you personally had
12	interaction with the members of the force
13	who were assigned to the Zone Assessment
14	Unit?
15	I can call it that and you'll
16	tell me if the answer would be different
17	than when it was the Demographics Unit;
18	okay?
19	A Yes.
20	Q Have you personally issued
21	instructions to members of the Zone
22	Assessment Unit?
23	A I would say I have personally
24	issued instructions, but I may have done it
25	through a chain of command. I would direct

4	Q What were the members of the Zone

6	What are the instructions that are given to

8	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
9	A It's a broad statement. If
10	you're asking me what their duties and
11	responsibilities are, I don't know what your
12	question is.
13	Q Okay. What are the duties and
14	responsibilities of the members of the Zone
15	Assessment Unit?
16	A The function of the Zone
17	Assessment Unit is to let me begin by
18	saying that in the beginning of the Zone
19	Assessment Unit, the function of the Zone
20	Assessment in the post 911 time was to go
21	out and go through the different communities
22	in New York City and help us identify
23	different communities that would be
24	considered communities that have people that
25	live in it from countries of concern.

[Page 25] 1 T. Galati 2 Q How were they told to go about 3 identifying such people? 4 A Well, as I said, this is directly 5 after 911, and countries that are concerned 6 were identified based on the 911 attack and 7 other attacks that happened throughout the 8 world, the people who committed those 9 attacks; 10 Islamics that have been 11 radicalized through violence that committed 12 those came from countries. 	2	A Are you asking me if this
	3	corresponds to the countries of concern?
	4	Q Correct.
	5	A I would say that most of them
	6	here do, but not all. Yugoslavia is no
	7	longer a country. Chechnya is part of
	8	Russia.
	9	Most of the other countries
	10	themselves are at Akrat and American black
	11	Muslim is not a country.
	12	Q Take a look at page five of
	13	Exhibit 2. I'm looking at the paragraph on
	14	page five on Demographics Unit.
	15	Was it a function of the
	16	Demographics Unit to develop a comprehensive
	17	analysis and understanding of the
	18	demographics trend throughout New York City?
	19	A I don't believe that is one of
	20	their functions. They are not analysts, so
	21	they are not trying to analyze, but, yes,
	22	they are supposed to understand the trend,
	23	the demographics trend in the city.
	24	Q What does that mean, demographics
	25	trend? What's your understanding of that

¹⁵ towards violence and we needed to know where ¹⁶ they were, to identify those countries of

¹⁹ Q That's your understanding of the
²⁰ phrase demographic trends?
21 A Yes.
22 Q That's what their function is?
23 A Yes.
24 Q Were members of the Demographics
²⁵ Unit also to conduct investigations and

2	gather intelligence information as directed?
3	A Based on the Handschu Guidelines,
4	the term investigations means the gathering
5	of information. So, based on the Handschu
6	Guidelines, I would say that that is
7	correct. As far as the police department's
8	terminology that I use in investigation,
9	they do not conduct investigations, they
10	gather information.
11	Q When you say the terminology that
12	you use about investigations, what is in
13	your terminology? What is an investigation?
14	A In traditional department
15	terminology of what an investigation is,
16	there's a crime or a person that is being
17	investigated because crime is committed, and
18	we have to find out who did this crime.
19	Or, we have information that the
20	crime will be committed and we're going to
21	conduct an investigation on that crew. That
22	is what an investigation is. An
23	investigation could be from a car accident.
24	An investigator has to investigate how the
25	car accident occurred.

1 T. Galati
² That's how I understand the term
³ of an investigation from traditional
4 department terminology.
5 Q Do I understand you to be saying
⁶ that using that terminology "Demographics
⁷ Unit" was not to engage in investigations,
⁸ as you just defined it?
9 A The demographic's
¹⁰ responsibilities was to collect information
¹¹ on areas so that we can identify countries
¹² of concern, where people that were being
¹³ radicalized towards violence, Islamics
¹⁴ radicalized towards violence.
¹⁵ Q Was the function of the members
¹⁶ of the force assigned to the Demographics
¹⁷ Unit to make assessment regarding the ¹⁸ potential for World events to impact upon
¹⁹ local communities?
20 A I don't believe it's their job to ²¹ make an assessment. However, through the ²² rest of the Intelligence Division, we
²³ monitor World events.
²⁴ If World events dictated that a
²⁵ particular area may become more of a

Case 201128ec	v1431688SDDootlanenD0031121672826Filerage/25013 Deatg=F390bf07303720024D:289

2	concern, then the Demographics or assessment
3	unit would go to that general area.
4	Q Was it in connection with that
5	activity that you just described? Was it
6	their job to collect information about how
7	World events were impacting local
8	communities for the analyst to analyze?
9	A I would say that if there was an
10	event in the world that resulted in some
11	type of violence or disruption, anywhere in
12	the World or within the state that was
13	related to terrorism activity, yes, they
14	would go.
15	They would basically see if it's
16	going to have any implications in New York
17	City.
18	Q Would it be fair to say that
19	their job was to see whether people were
20	talking about it and how people were talking
21	about it?
22	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
23	A Their job was, if they hear
24	people talking about it, you know, they
25	should inform us. If what they're hearing

2	is hostility towards the United States or to
3	the general public at large, you know, as a
4	result of these events, would something
5	happen here as a result? Their job is to
6	listen for that.
7	Q You used the word hostility
8	towards the United States. I want to make
9	sure that I don't misunderstand you.
10	A lot of people talk. They don't
11	like what's going on, what this person is
12	doing, they don't like what the United
13	States is doing.
14	Are you talking as broadly as the
15	hostility in the United States, in the sense
16	of expressions of opinions that were
17	contrary to the policies of the United
18	States
19	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
20	Q or objected to the policies of
21	the United States?
22	A I would say that it doesn't even
23	have to involve the United States at all;
24	its general policing to prevent violence.
25	There is plenty of strength in

3	muslims and sunni muslims.
4	There's violence between these
5	two sections of the religion. It could
6	escalate and happen here. It doesn't have
7	to necessarily relate to the United States
8	itself.
9	It could have just the general
10	public or within that community itself.
11	It's a Pakistani community. It could be
12	among Pakistani to each other.
13	It's broader than hostility
14	towards the United States, hostility in the
15	community.
16	Q Were members of the force
17	assigned to the Demographics Unit instructed
18	to bring back information about expressions
19	of opinion whether or not they related to
20	violence or potential violence?
21	A Say the question again.
22	Q What I'm trying to find out is,
23	were the instructions given to them to
24	report back about what they were hearing
25	broad enough?

9	A I guess I would have to see that

12	It's not something that they
13	should bring to us. It depends on the
14	context, it depends on the time, it depends
15	on who is talking about it. I couldn't
16	answer that question.
17	Q Fair enough. Since the
18	instructions have to be given before going

20	whether the instructions were as broad as
21	simply telling us what you hear, whatever it

2	or were they, just to be clear, bringing
3	back everything you hear?
4	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
5	A No, their instructions were not
6	to go and bring back every conversation that
7	they heard. That's not what their
8	instructions were.
9	Q What was given to them in way of
10	instructions to guide their judgement about
11	what to bring back?
12	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
13	MR. EISENSTEIN: He says that
14	for a reason, but it doesn't mean you

18	A A lot of conversation that has
19	been brought back has value. On the
20	surface, it may seem valuable. Overall
21	conversation may relate to where people are
22	at that particular location, you know. To
23	get a little bit deeper, I think that a
24	conversation overheard by people in the
25	Lebanese cafe may indicate to us that they

2	are from South Lebanon or North Lebanon.
3	Although it may seem not
4	important when analysts look at it, an
5	analyst can understand that a particular
6	town that was mentioned in a conversation
7	may be in South Lebanon.
8	That may be an indicator of
9	possibility that that is a sympathizer to
10	Hezbollah because Southern Lebanon is
11	dominated by Hezbollah.
12	Q I understand what you're saying.
13	A lot of stuff can be a risk, useful
14	information. What I'm trying to find out
15	is, somehow or another, the people assigned
16	to the Demographics Unit or the Zone
17	Assessment Unit are being asked to
18	distinguish between what they should report
19	about and what they shouldn't be reporting
20	about. They have to make some judgements
21	about what to report about, correct?
22	A Yes. I would have to say they
23	would make some suggestions.
24	Q What are given by way of
25	instructions to help guide their use of

Case 22a3ecv14314688SDD06v101/entD0031111620826 FileRage/25513 Date=Filebf01730372014D: 294

2	their judgement about what to report about?
3	A If we deployed them because of an
4	event that took place in a particular part
5	of the World, a drone attack, we would want
6	to know and we would instruct them that
7	people are upset about this drone attack.
8	If they are, that's something
9	that would be important for us to know, that
10	would be something we would want to know.
11	If they were talking about something that
12	would help us identify what religion or what
13	type of people they are from the country of
14	concern that we're trying to identify, that
15	would be something that we would want them
16	to report.
17	So, it's twofold. If there's a
18	reaction to something or if it's going to
19	help us, their main purpose is just to help
20	us identify where in the city we would find
21	people from some countries of concern, that
22	Islamics radicalized towards violence would
23	hide or recruit.
24	Q I understand what you're saying

3	If there isn't a specific event
4	that has occurred, are general instructions
5	given to help guide their judgement about
6	what information to bring back?
7	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
8	A Their main function is to
9	catalogue those locations so we can
10	understand what countries of concern they're
11	from, their observations and overheard
12	conversations.
13	When they are not deployed in
14	relation to an event, should they hear an
15	overheard conversation that I would
16	consider, and I'll use the word alarming or
17	aggressive. Those kinds of conversations we
18	would want them to bring back.
19	Q Was it part of the job of members
20	of the force assigned to the Demographics
21	Unit to analyze religious institutions,
22	locations or congregations?
23	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
24	A The Zone Assessment Unit/
25	Demographics Unit does not do any analytical

1	T. Galati
2	work when it comes to what their function
3	is. They have identified religious
4	institutions to the extent that we can
5	understand what country or countries of
6	concern would go to those particular
7	locations.
8	Q Have they identified those
9	locations by going to them?
10	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
11	A Yes. Are you asking me can
12	you rephrase the question?
13	Q Have members of the force, who
14	are assigned to what's now called the Zone
15	Assessment Unit, visited religious
16	institutions, congregations?
17	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
18	A Let me state that, since I'm here
19	in 2006, members of the Demographics Unit,
20	it is our practice and policy that they do
21	not go into religious institutions unless
22	there's a need to because we have to
23	identify what type of institutions.
24	It's not always readily available
25	from the outside. However, we prefer that

1	T. Galati
2	they do it from the outside, if possible.
3	However, when 911 happened and then this
4	unit stood up and we had to understand a
5	little bit more and gain knowledge, it was
6	necessary to go inside those locations in
7	order to determine what type of congregation
8	it was and what people, from what countries
9	of concern would be there.
10	So, for identification reasons
11	early on, they did go into some of those
12	locations. It is not their normal practice
13	and it is not their practice today.
14	Q When you say early on, are you
15	talking about things that occurred prior to
16	your being in the Intelligence Division?
17	A Yes, I'm talking about early on
18	when the Demographics Unit was first
19	deployed.
20	Q Were those activities, religious
21	institutions going on when you became
22	commander of the Intelligence Division?
23	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
24	A As I stated, I came in 2006 and
25	that is not our normal practice or policy.

[Page 40] 1 T. Galati 2 I cannot definitively tell you that it has 3 never happened if it is a new location, a 4 new mosque that we have never seen before. 5 That is not readily available 6 based on signs. They may have. It is not 7 our policy nor is it our practice to have 8 them do that. 9 When I said early on, I am going back to the original starting point of the 10 11 unit, when it was necessary to first really determine what kind of location it was. 12 MR. EISENSTEIN: Can you mark 13 14 this as Exhibit 3. 15 (Plaintiff's Exhibit 3, a 16 document, was marked for identification, 17 as of this date.) 18 I've handed you what's been 0 19 marked as Plaintiff's Exhibit 3. My 20 question is, do you recognize this document? 21 MR. FARRELL: Off the record. 22 (A discussion was held off the 23 record.) 24 Α

2	The question is open-ended and
3	you aren't putting it within that

6	that's where I have an objection and I'm
7	instructing the witness not to answer.
8	MR. CHEVIGNY: Wouldn't mosques
9	be considered places open to the public?
10	MR. FARRELL: I can consult with
11	the witness to respond.
12	MR. EISENSTEIN: Let me make it
13	clear. I understand what this
14	deposition is about. I'm trying to find

17	882, I'm trying to guess how many
18	mosques have been visited and my way

21	I haven't gone into anything

6	MR. EISENSTEIN: You said it's

9	MR. FARRELL: I need to confer

11	A The Demographics Unit has

14	would go to that mosque. What the exact

17	Q Was the Demographics Unit tasked
18	with identifying mosques around the city

4	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
5	A The purpose of the Demographics
6	Unit and the Zone Assessment Unit was to
7	identify mosques, to identify the ethnic
8	community that would be associated with the
9	mosques.
10	If they could do it without the
11	outside, they would do it from the outside.
12	Often, they were unable to do that and they
13	would then go inside. I'm talking early in
14	the unit's existence.
15	If they needed to, they would go
16	inside the location in order to determine
17	what ethnic community, what signs to
18	describe, what ethnic community would attend
19	that particular mosque.
20	As I did say, that is not the
21	practice and policy since I've been here in
22	2006, and I think I said earlier that unless
23	for some reason there was no other way to

18	A If the Demographics Unit was
19	unable to determine what kind of mosque it

21	Q Yes.

5	A Can you say it one more time?
6	Q Does the Intelligence Division

15	the term has not been used.

18	a mosque as being of concern or of interest

6	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
7	A I did not state that. The
8	Demographics Unit has used the term of

10	interpreting concern, interest is related to
11	stuff that's learned outside of 882 with

13	Q Are you saying that that
14	designation has not occurred as a result of
15	a visit under 882?
16	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
17	A Under 882, where the Demographics
18	Unit has visited other establishments, they
19	will use a terminology that may be location
20	of concern or a hotspot. So, in other
21	documents or other identifiable locations,
22	they used that terminology.
23	Q What I'm asking is, have they
24	used that terminology as a result of
25	information gained from a visit under 882?

2	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
3	A Are we talking about commercial
4	establishments?
5	Q Well, I will ask about that.
6	Right now I'm asking you about mosques.
7	A I don't believe that they make
8	that determination. Fair function was to
9	identify the mosques in the community,
10	ethnicity that would go to the mosques.
11	They don't make that determination if it's a

20	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
21	A I could not definitively tell you

	4	However, I will tell you that Demographics
	5	visits mosques and identifies mosques.
	6	Q Just so that we're clear, is it
	7	your understanding that those visits are
	8	authorized under 882 of the Handschu
	9	Guidelines?
	10	MR. FARRELL: Objection. You're
	11	asking from a legal conclusion?
	12	MR. EISENSTEIN: Anybody who has
	13	to apply a legal rule can be asked about
	14	their understanding and their rule. So
	15	having said that, let me ask the
	16	question again.
	17	Q Is it your understanding that
	18	those visits to the mosques by the
	19	Demographics Unit are authorized under
	20	section 882 of the Handschu Guidelines?
	21	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
	22	A The Demographics Unit identifies
	23	locations that would be frequently by
	24	communities of countries of interest. By
	25	identifying these locations, to help us

1	T. Galati
2	identify the communities, with the goal of
3	trying to detect or prevent terrorism
4	activity, by cataloguing those locations, to
5	include mosques is not investigating
6	political activity. So, I would say that
7	them visiting by itself does not fall into
8	investigating political activity.
9	Q Am I correct that what you're
10	saying in your understanding is the visits
11	to the mosques aren't even covered by the
12	Handschu Guidelines?
13	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
14	A I'm saying the cataloguing of
15	mosques does not necessarily fall under the
16	investigation of political activity.
17	Q I'm a little concerned. I think
18	we're talking slightly passed each other.
19	What I'm hearing you say is that the visits
20	to mosques for the purpose of cataloguing
21	them is not gathering information about
22	political activity if you don't even get to
23	the Handschu Guidelines? Is that what
24	you're saying?
25	In other words, you don't have to

Case 2018	cv14314688SDD06b40074enD00311e16720826Filetage/27813DPatgeFiletof01730372001e4D:31

2	identify a provision of the Handschu
3	Guidelines that would authorize it because
4	it's not even covered by the Handschu
5	Guidelines?
6	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
7	A No. What I'm saying is that
8	their function by itself by just cataloguing
9	may or may not fall into that depending on
10	what the result of that visit is. But, the
11	basic identification of locations and
12	cataloguing by itself is not investigations
13	of political activity.
14	Q So that, a demographics member of
15	the force assigned to the Demographics Unit
16	who goes to a mosque for the purpose of
17	finding out what kind of a mosque it is and
18	what community goes there is not using the
19	authority that is granted under this
20	section?
21	I'm going to quote, "For the
22	purpose of detecting or preventing terrorist
23	activity, the NYPD is authorized to visit
24	anyplace and attend any event that is open
25	to the public on the same terms and

	8	My question is, are you saying
	9	that, in your understanding, when a member
	10	of the Demographics Unit goes to a mosque
	11	for the purpose of finding out who goes
	12	there, what community goes there, what
	13	community it's related to, that member of

	17	MR. FARRELL: Objection. I'm
	18	objecting. It calls for a legal
	19	conclusion.
	20	You can answer the question.
	21	A That section applies to a broader
	22	goal with the Handschu Guidelines. 882 is
	23	one part of a broader guideline, the
	24	Handschu Guidelines, and the Handschu

3	What I'm saying is, by itself
4	there are levels that can and cannot take it
5	into 882.
6	By itself, cataloguing locations,
7	to know the ethnicity of the community is
8	not investigating political activity.
9	Q Let's just take a member of the
10	force assigned to the demographics community
11	goes into a mosque.
12	Are you saying that whether it's
13	covered by the guidelines depends on what
14	that member of the force brings away? In
15	other words, if he only brings away
16	information about the ethnicity of the
17	people at that mosque, it's not covered by
18	the Handschu Guidelines at all?
19	Is that an example of what you're
20	saying or have I got it wrong?
21	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
22	A I think by identifying locations
23	and cataloguing them, finding out the
24	ethnicity by itself, is not investigating
25	political activity.

5	deployed to visit mosques? Do you want to
6	hear that question back?
7	A That question may be different at
8	different times. I can't give you a direct

10	that we tell the officers to try and make
11	observations that can help us identify a

13	what country of concern may go there, should
14	we need to identify an Islamic that's
15	Radicalized towards violence, maybe hiding
16	in for police action, should it arise.
17	Q Are members of the force assigned
18	to the Zone Assessment or Demographics Unit,
19	who are deployed to go into mosques, given
20	instructions about section 882 of the
21	Handschu Guidelines?
22	In other words, are they told
23	that information obtained on the visits is
24	not to be retained unless it's related to

2	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
3	A You stated that members of the
4	unit are being sent into mosques. I didn't
5	state that. I stated to you that the goal
6	is for them to identify the mosque and the
7	community, countries of interest that may be
8	associated with that mosque.
9	However, the Demographics Unit
10	does receive instructions on 882, so they do
11	know what 882 is.
12	Q Is that instruction something
13	that's given on a regular basis, had been
14	given ones? What's the drill in relation to
15	instructions about 882 to members of the
16	Demographics Unit or Zone Assessment Unit
17	going into the community?
18	A I think that we instruct all
19	members of the Demographics Unit on 882 as
20	part of a broader training that we do on all
21	of Handschu, and I will state that they

1 T. We do many, many things to make sure 10 that everybody understands the entire 11 guideline, not just the 882. 12 MR. EISENSTEIN: Can I have this marked as Exhibit 4. 13 14 (Plaintiff's Exhibit 4, a 15 document, was marked for identification, 16 as of this date.) 17 0 I've put in front of you what's 18 been marked as Exhibit 4. My first question 19 is, have you seen this document before? 20 I have seen this document as one Α 21 of the documents I reviewed that was 22 released by the AP Articles. 23 Do you know whether the statement 0 24 of particular speakers at particular mosques 25 that are reproduced in Exhibit 4 were

³ MR. FARRELL: Sure.

15	Q That's the pending question.
16	What is meant in that setting by the term

18	A I would say that rhetoric is

20	inciting somebody or encouraging somebody to
21	commit an unlawful act.
22	Q Is that something that's the
23	subject of a written standard? What

25	someone or some place to be of interest?

[Page 67] 1 T. Galati 2 A 3 Q 4 inciting, of someone committing an unlawful 5 act. I'm asking if that's a definition of a 6 subject of written standard anywhere? 7 A I don't believe that's a written 8 standard. 9 Q In 882 of the Handschu 10 Guidelines, there's a reference to 11 information: "No information obtained from 12 such visits shall be retained unless it 13 relates to potential unlawful or terrorist 14 activity." 15 Would you say that as applied in 16 882, the same definition that you had just 17 given me of rhetoric applies? A Is your question that

2	lunch question. You have to forgive me.
3	Does any other unit besides the
4	Demographics Unit within the Intelligence
5	Division engage in the activity that are
6	described and authorized in 882?
7	A No, the Demographics Unit is the
8	only unit.
9	Q Are members of the force assigned
10	to the Demographics Unit instructed to
11	report back about certain kinds of rhetoric?
12	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
13	Q If they hear it.
14	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
15	A What I would say is, the function
16	of the Demographics Unit is to go out,
17	catalog locations. There are times when
18	there are World events, and during the times
19	of World events, then they would be going
20	out looking to gage, I guess gage the
21	feeling or the sentiment of the situation
22	related to it. It's a reaction area. That
23	would be the Demographics Unit that would go
24	into the location to gage that sentiment.
25	It's based often on a World event or could

Г	Page	69]

2	be based on an event.
3	Q Taking that as an example, in
4	that reaction situation, are the members of
5	the force assigned to the Demographics Unit
6	instructed to report back about what they
7	hear on that subject, on the subject of the
8	event?
9	A I guess it would depend on what
10	they heard about that subject. I would say
11	that they are to report if they have
12	overheard a conversation which would gain a
13	reaction. We're looking for a reaction.
14	Q You're looking for what the
15	reaction is to that World event, correct?
16	A I would like to say the reaction
17	to determine if it has any implications for
18	New York City for that particular community
19	or anything. So, is this Global event going
20	to have an adverse reaction in a particular
21	area, community, particular people that may
22	cause the police department to have to react
23	to it?
24	Q I don't have any copies of this.
25	The record should reflect that there are

Is this document, Q 19 bates stamped 904, part of a report of a 20 member of the force assigned to the Zone 21 Assessment Unit conducting a visit pursuant 22 to section 882 of the Handschu Guidelines? 23 Α Yes. 24 0 Under section 882 of the Handschu 25 Guidelines, as you understand the

3	information about this conversation given
4	the restriction that says no information
5	retained from such visits shall be retained
6	unless it relates to potential unlawful or
7	terrorist activity?
8	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
9	A The main purpose of the
10	Demographics Unit/Zone Assessment Unit helps
11	us identify locations if we're faced with a
12	threat that's coming from a country of
13	concern and we're looking to find a
14	terrorist that's likely to commit a
15	terrorist attack.
16	The police department needs to
17	know where we should go and look for that
18	particular terrorist. A lot of information
19	that the Zone Assessment Unit captures helps
20	us identify locations that we should look or
21	not look for.
22	In this document, it's clear that
23	speaking in Urdu officers indicate they are
24	Pakistani. It does have value to us for
25	potential terrorist or unlawful activity in

1	T. Galati
2	the sense that it's telling us, in this
3	particular location at second second , we
4	would be able to find that's a location
5	where we would possibly find I'm not
6	telling you that would be a Pakistani
7	location and we're going to find someone
8	that speaks Urdu, a terrorist from a
9	particular region in Pakistan where they
10	speak Urdu or if we're looking for an Urdu
11	Pakistani male that would commit a terrorist
12	attack. This piece of information would be
13	very valuable to us.
14	We retain that information
15	because it may seem like minutia. The fact
16	that they speak Pakistani and Urdu is
17	something that I find useful in my quest.
18	Q You comment speaking in Urdu and
19	Pakistani.
20	A Yes.
21	Q From the point of view of what
22	you just described and I'm not seeking to
23	argue with you, isn't the information that
24	this is a location where we could find
25	Pakistanis who speak Urdu let me ask the

1	T. Galati
2	question in a different way.
3	How is the police function
4	advanced or aided by the content of this
5	conversation in which one person is
6	complaining to the other about
7	worker who supposedly burned the
8	quran was rehired?
9	Does that information relate to
10	potential unlawful activity or terrorist
11	activity?
12	A I would say we're not looking for
13	Pakistanis that speak Urdu. That's not what
14	we're looking for. The goal of the
15	information collected is so that when we're
16	looking for a terrorist, Islamic radicalized
17	towards violence, that we have threat,
18	information that has come in and we need to
19	start looking for that person. We have
20	information that indicates that this person
21	is Pakistani, speaks Urdu or may even to
22	some extent based on Urdu give us a
23	particular region where they might be from.
24	That information is very valuable
25	when we're faced with an intimate threat and

Case £	å8e:√	434688SDD06M04enD00311116Z0826Filetage/29513Date=Filedf0730372014D:334

	2	we have to look for it.
	3	My point is that that
	4	conversation is indicating that these males
	5	who speak Urdu is valuable to us in
	6	detecting or preventing a terrorist
	7	activity.
	8	That's really what I'm focusing
	9	on, is the fact that these two men at that
	10	location, speaking are angry
	11	about what happened to someone who burned
	12	the quran. Is that of value? Is that
	13	useful? The phrase in 882 information
	14	relates to potential unlawful activity, not
	15	their ethnicity, not their language, not the
	16	region where they're from.
	17	The particular grievance where
	18	they were exchanging about, it's the
	19	information that's contained in the
	20	conversation that's of value. We're
	21	identifying these people. It may not be
	22	Pakistani. It's frequently by a Pakistani
	23	individual that speaks Urdu. That's an
	24	important part. It's the information
	25	contained in the conversation that would

1	T. Galati
2	help us when we have to start looking.
3	This is something that we can
4	turn to. We can start saying, where should
5	we be looking for a terrorist who's planning
6	or recruiting potential attack in New York
7	City and we know that that person is
8	Pakistani and Urdu.
9	Based on the language that would
10	be important to us, I would say, not
11	necessarily the content, everything
12	contained in it, the information that the
13	conversation has that I consider of value.
14	Q I'm focusing on the content and
15	on the specific provision of 882 because, in
16	fact, in this report the content was
17	retained. In other words, this is a
18	document from I don't remember if it's
19	2010 or 2011. It's relatively the last
20	couple of years. What I'm trying to find
21	out is whether from your vantage point as
22	Commander of the Intelligence Division, in
23	terms of instructing these people of the
24	force who are doing the work of the Zone
25	Assessment Unit, do you understand the

2	retention of the content?
3	What I mean by the content is the
4	expressed grievance about this
5	workers, the retention of that
6	content. Is that consistent with 882 saying
7	no information shall be retained unless it
8	relates to potential unlawful or terrorist
9	activity?
10	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
11	A What I'm saying is that as a
12	whole, this statement has value to us in the
13	protection or prevention of a terrorist act.
14	Q Take a look at 833. Let me just
15	have the book back to make sure I'm giving
16	you the right page. It's 836. If you
17	would, read it. Since I don't have a copy
18	of it, read the conversation that's
19	reproduced on 836.

1	T. Galati
2	Does that information relate to
3	unlawful potential activity or terrorism?
4	A I have to state that in these
5	conversations, when they indicate signals to
6	us that we can use as far as identifying
7	people from countries of concern, it is of
8	value.
9	I can't take the content without
10	taking the description and the Urdu in it.
11	I would say that it does have value to us.
12	And under 882, I would state that
13	we could retain that.
14	Q Can you articulate how it has
15	value? What is the thought process that
16	leads you to conclude that the phrase is no
17	information obtained from such visits shall
18	be retained unless it relates to potential
19	unlawful or terrorist activity?
20	If you could, tell us how you
21	would express what the value is?
22	A I think I did explain it in the
23	last example, but I will explain it again.
24	The purpose of the demographics cataloged in
25	these locations, collecting information at

1	T. Galati
2	these locations are for the police
3	department to respond to a threat that they
4	may be facing.
5	When we are faced with a threat
6	or we have information about a threat that
7	is present and we need to go out and we need
8	to try and mitigate that threat, we have to
9	be able to, at our fingertips, find what is
10	the most likely location that that terrorist
11	is going to go to and hide out amongst other
12	people from the same country.
13	But, this is the person that is
14	going to commit a terrorist attack. To
15	value what's in here, that I know if I'm
16	looking for a terrorist who is Pakistani,
17	from a region in Pakistan who speaks Urdu,
18	I'm not going to waist my time in a
19	restaurant where they speak Arabic.
20	I want to know where the
21	restaurant is that are going to be
22	Pakistanis. Mostly likely, Postun that's
23	speaking Urdu. So that's value to me to
24	prevent or detect terrorism that I'm now
25	facing the threat.

[Page 81] 1 T. Galati 2 I know where it's coming from. Ι 3 want to go to these locations so I can 4 either find somebody that's hiding in these 5 locations, recruiting in these locations. That's the value of it. 6 7 Q Would you agree that there are a 8 number of locations that have been mapped by 9 the Zone Assessment Unit where Pakistani 10 people speaking Urdu congregate? 11 Α I believe that they have 12 identified numerous locations where people 13 speak Urdu. 14 0 The question that I'm asking is, 15 are you saying that the fact that two people 16 at a particular location complained about 17 in 18 the manner that is described in that 19 conversation makes that place more likely to 20 be a haven for someone engaging in a 21 terrorist act and therefore, that 22 information relates to potential terrorist 23 activity? 24 MR. FARRELL: Objection. 25 0 Do you understand my question?

1	T. Galati
2	A I understand the question. I
3	would say no, I am not telling you that this
4	place is more likely than another place
5	where they speak Urdu. What I'm saying is
6	that, depending on what threat we're facing,
7	we need to be able to look at what
8	information we have collected so we could
9	properly deploy and try to find the threat
10	or the terrorist and the tension that are
11	going to help us in the information
12	contained.
13	The fact that it's Pakistani,
14	Urdu is a very important factor. It doesn't
15	mean that there's more of a chance that he's
16	going to be in this particular one. It's
17	important for me to know this is one of the
18	locations that we're going to have a
19	Pakistani community that speaks Urdu that's
20	radicalized towards violence that would
21	either try to either hide or recruit.
22	Q I understand what you're saying.

3	retained, right?
4	A Yes.
5	Q And the guidelines for what
6	information can be retained are captured in
7	the World related to potential unlawful or
8	terrorist activity, right? That's where the
9	limitation resides, so to spoke?
10	A Yes.
11	Q Let's take this page 834 or 6,
12	whatever it is.
13	A 836.
14	Q There's certain information at
15	this place, Pakistanis who speak Urdu
16	congregate and talk to each other. That's
17	one set of information. Okay? You've told
18	me that that's extremely valuable for you to
19	know about if you're addressing a threat,
20	right?
21	A Yes.
22	Q I'm apologizing for taxing you
23	about this. I'm focused on whether the
24	retention of the specific conversation for
25	another word complaining about the threat of

2	these .
3	You told me that that piece of
4	information that there are two guys there
5	complaining about the does not make it more likely
7	that a terrorist would go, am I correct so
8	far?
9	A You'd have to repeat that.
10	Q I think you've told me that the
11	fact that at this particular location where
12	there are Pakistanis speaking Urdu, the Zone
13	Assessment Unit heard two men complaining
14	about the
	That fact alone, their complaint
16	expressed to each other doesn't make it more
17	likely that this is a place where a
18	terrorist would go?
19	A It doesn't make it more likely or
20	less likely. It's a tool for us to look for
21	that person that we're looking for that has
22	that same characteristic that's going to
23	hide or recruit within a place that he or
24	she is comfortable in.
25	For a terrorist person that we're

1	T. Galati
2	trying to secrete themselves in this
3	particular community, I can't tell you it's
4	more likely or less likely. It's a tool for
5	us to look in the right place.
6	Q If it's either more likely or
7	less likely, the specific conversation about
8	the
	, how does that piece of information
10	relate to potential unlawful or terrorist
11	activity?
12	A I'm taking the conversation as a
13	whole. I'm looking in that conversation.
14	I'm seeing Urdu. I'm seeing them identify
15	the individuals involved in that are
16	Pakistani.
17	I'm using that information for me
18	to determine that this would be a kind of
19	place that a terrorist would be comfortable
20	in and I'm retaining that for the fact that
21	I can retain it, if it's going to help me
22	detect or prevent a potential unlawful or
23	terrorist attack.
24	So, a potential terrorist could
25	hide in here and that piece of information

1	T. Galati
2	is important for me to know. That this is
3	where I'm going to find somebody that speaks
4	Urdu. And again, I'll go far beyond
5	Pakistan. Most Urdu speakers from that
6	region would be of concern, so that's why
7	it's important to me.
8	Q The fact that these two guys are
9	grieved about something that happened in the
10	U.S., is that of importance to you?
11	A That is less important to me than
12	the fact that they are Pakistanis and that
13	they are speaking Urdu.
14	Within this, this is the
15	important pieces that I'm looking for.
16	Q Is the fact that these two guys
17	are grieved about something, is that
18	something that happened in the U.S., does
19	that fact relate to potential unlawful or
20	terrorist activity, the fact alone that they
21	are grieved about something that happened?
22	A Say your question one more time.
23	Q I understand what you said about
24	Pakistani, probably Postun, Urdu speaking,
25	all of the specification of ethnicity.

1	T. Galati
2	Putting that aside, I'm asking
3	about the fact that these two guys are
4	grieved about something that happened in the
5	U.S. is that fact related to potential
6	terrorist or unlawful activity?
7	A I can't separate the conversation
8	based out of the value that I see in the
9	conversation, what their grievance is. It's
10	not what I'm focused on. I'm focused on the
11	identification that I'm getting out of the
12	conversation.
13	Q I'm showing you now what's been
14	Bates stamped as page two in the document
15	production. There's a conversation in
16	boldface,

FARRELL: Objection. 3 Α This is a report I believe that 4 we call a weekly report of numerous 5 locations that were visited. These visits were conducted under 6 0 section 882 of the Handschu Guidelines? 7 8 MR. FARRELL: Objection. 9 Α The visits and cataloguing alone 10 are not. However, there are a spectrum of 11 things that may in fact fall under 882. 12 0 What are the things that fall in 13 882? 14 Α You're asking me about this whole 15 entire document, so, there are numerous 16 locations. 17 0 Just focusing on the section that 18 I asked you to read, does that part of the 19 report fall under 882? 20 Α I would say, yes. 21 0 I just want to understand and 22 bear with me with this question, and tell me 23 if you don't understand it. A member of the 24 force assigned to the Demographics Unit goes 25 into a location. At the moment he goes in,

1	T. Galati
2	I understand you to be saying that that's
3	not necessarily covered by 882. Not
4	necessarily doesn't necessarily have to be
5	authorized by 882.
6	Before he hears a word just going
7	into the location, he's been assigned to go
8	to the location. He steps in the door. I
9	want to try to break it down in some way.
10	This won't be useful, but I'll try.
11	A When we go out and try to
12	catalogue locations so that we could
13	determine what country of concern would go
14	to that, the simple fact that we're
15	cataloguing locations does not necessarily
16	fall in 882. However, the authority that we
17	go out and go to these locations and at
18	times have these overheard conversations
19	does fall within 882, and the reason why we
20	retain them is because we have value in the
21	statements which would help us prevent or
22	detect terrorism activity.
23	Q Thank you. You got a little
24	ahead of me. That visit to what is it that made it subject to

3	A Say it again.
4	Q Maybe I need to back up.
5	MR. FARRELL: I want to put on
6	the record, you had asked a question
7	about what the witness has said. It may
8	be confusing as to what it may fall
9	under, but we'll look at it in the
10	review process.
11	MR. EISENSTEIN: So noted that
12	you noted it.
13	Q Just focusing on the portion of
14	the report that relates to what the
15	reporting officer saw and heard at
	, is that section of the
17	report subject to section 882 of the
18	Handschu Guidelines covered by 882?
19	MR. FARRELL: The part that he
20	just read into the record?
21	MR. EISENSTEIN: Correct.
22	A I would say yes.
23	Q What is it about that section of
24	the report that in your understanding makes
25	it subject to that rule, the 882?

1	T. Galati
2	A Information contained within
3	there, which has given us other information
4	that could be helpful in the purpose of
5	preventing terrorist activity.
6	Q What is the information contained
7	in what you read that I'm going to use the
8	phrase from 882 that relates to potential
9	unlawful or terrorist activity?
10	A Well, the fact that they are
11	speaking in Bengali is a factor that I would
12	want to know. Being that it's a
13	store, I would want to know that. There are
14	things in here that has helped me identify
15	who would go and visit this store. So those
16	factors tell me something that I consider of
17	value.
18	Q Am I correct that if they simply
19	reported a location where they speak
20	and and they are from a certain
21	region, that's all they wrote down from your
22	understanding, that would not involve 882?
23	That's just a mapping function, correct?
24	A No, it would help us. Mapping is
25	telling us where the places are. Some of

1	T. Galati
2	these observations and overheard
3	conversations just give us more information,
4	so it goes beyond the simple just
5	cataloguing of a location.
6	Q I understand that, chief. What
7	I'm asking you about is everything gives you
8	more information. In other words, every
9	word that they write gives you more
10	information about that location, correct?
11	A Correct.
12	Q But, there's a limitation in the
13	Handschu rules about what information you
14	can retain, right?
15	A Correct.
16	Q Isn't the retention of a
17	conversation in which one customer
18	says to the guy behind the counter, that
19	is correct and the government
20	is not corrupt the way third world countries
21	are corrupt? I'm sorry for the double
22	negative. Isn't that information that does
23	not relate to potential unlawful or
24	terrorist activity?

2	To the extent of that, what is
3	the community's reaction to let's say events
4	or things. Also, I think what's important
5	for us is, if the conversations indicate
6	support for let's say Osama Bin Laden or
7	Iran or depends on a particular
8	conversation, it's important for us to know
9	because that might be a place that a
10	terrorist could recruit from.
11	So, the content of the
12	conversations may give us an idea of the
13	place that a terrorist would be comfortable
14	being in, so he could recruit from a
15	location like that. I think also the fact
16	that current events would tell us if the
17	community's upset, if that's going to have
18	any implication within the city.
19	So just a little bit more in
20	those conversations.
21	Q Who are the analysts that make
22	the kind of determination or assessment that
23	you've just been talking about? What their
24	names are, where do they fit in the
25	structure of the Intelligence Division?

1	T. Galati
2	A The analysts are non-police
3	officers. They are not police officers
4	that are hired there. They look at whatever
5	they look at, World events.
6	They look at local events. They
7	look at information that comes in from many
8	different parts of the Intelligence
9	Division, and it's their job to make an
10	assessment on whether or not there's an
11	issue of concern that we must address.
12	Q Are they under your command? Are
13	they within the chain of command of the
14	Investigations Unit, Intelligence Unit?
15	A Yes.
16	Q If they make an assessment of
17	what's being brought in, warrants, some
18	action, does that indicate that an
19	investigation has commenced?
20	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
21	A Related to Demographics, I can
22	tell you that information that have come in
23	has not commenced an investigation.
24	Q You're saying that based on what
25	has occurred during your tenor, correct?

2	A Yes.
3	Q Do you know whether that was also
4	the case before you took over the
5	Intelligence Division?
6	A I think that prior to me, there
7	had been indication that there was one place
8	that was visited later, that later on became
9	subject of an investigation.
10	However, I have not been able to
11	determine that. That case involved a

13	definitively say that it was because of
14	Demographics.
15	I believe it was because of the

17	Q After Demographics provided

8	yes, it is retained because the report

10	value, of intelligence value.
11	Q What is your understanding of the
12	meaning of the phrase investigation of
13	political activity?
14	A It's in relation to persons or
15	people or groups that want to exercise their
16	right to try and effect change or maintain
17	government or social status. That's what
18	political activity means.

14	Q Was that a change or are you
15	saying that that change doesn't mean that

11	for them to gage that reaction.
12	So, we would be looking for a

7	2010, January, 14, 2010 and January 21,

9	After you've looked at it, in
10	terms of the purposes that you've described
11	to me of the Demographics Unit or of the
12	Zone Assessment Unit, what is the purpose of
13	going back to this location three times of a
14	period of 11 days or 15 days? The question
15	is, why is the Zone Assessment Unit going
16	back to this location three times in a short
17	period of time?
18	A I can't tell you exactly the
19	reason why we went to these three locations
20	in a short period of time. I can tell you
21	that there are times when we work in a
22	particular area and that may be the reason
23	why they went to it. To give you a

Just 7 using that as an example. So, I'm focusing 8 on that situation where they are not 9 reacting, not seeking reaction to a 10 particular World event. 11 Q Can you think of a reason in 12 terms of the functions of the Zone 13 Assessment Unit going back to a location 14 multiple times in a short period of time. 15 A 16 Assessment Unit does not monitor locations, 17 so they are not going there because they are 18 concerned or have conducted an investigation 19 on the location. That's not their duty and 20 responsibility. Zone Assessment people are 21 locations for places, for people, 22 locations for places, for people, 23 communities of concern may shop or gather. 4	Part of their duties and
5	responsibilities is to make sure that they
6	update their information, so that's a reason
7	why they do go back.
8	Another thing that they do is
9	identify places that may be better suited to
10	go to in the event of a World event, where
11	they have to hear an overheard conversation.
12	Similar to what I said, it would be better to go to a location, to go to a 13 14 location that has more people than less. 15 That's why they would go to a particular 16 location if it was based on a reaction, 17 community, sometimes they are small. So if 18 they are trying to gage reaction in a particular community, that doesn't have many 19 places and many different parts of the city. 20 21 They could be in that particular 22 Those are some of the reasons why area. they could go to a location more than once. 23 24 However, I can't tell you why in 25 this case, in these other instances -- I

I can't comment on 3 4 those. 5 0 Take a look please at page 101 to 105. I'm going to also ask you about 96 6 7 through 100. If you would look at both of 8 those and let me know when you're done so I 9 can ask you questions. 10 You said 101? Α 11 Q Yes, and then 101 to 105. First 12 question, one of those are two i locations. One a 13 , another one 14 , right? a 15 Α Yes. The officer assigned the Zone 16 Q 17 Assessment Unit, officer described the 18 or check location of concern for 19 and did not check location of the 20 concern for the 21 Α Yes. 22 First question: Are the 0 23 reporting officers making that judgement or 24 are they simply checking off what they have 25 been told already?

1	T. Galati
2	In other words, are they
3	assessing these places as locations of
4	concern or not locations of concern based on
5	what they are going out and seeing or are
6	they going because it's already a location
7	of concern or maybe there's a third
8	alternative?
9	A We do not tell the demographics
10	officers to go into a location that is part
11	of some other Handschu investigation. They
12	have no idea whether anybody in the division
13	thinks it is or is not a place of concern.
14	When they reference a location of
15	concern, they reference it in a way that, if
16	there's an incident related to the
17	community, this is an
18	identifiable location that they would be
19	able to go into and that they would hear
20	conversations.
21	If you look at the
22	and you look at the second provide and the second provide at the
23	for that reason that you see a
24	isn't going to be filled with people that
25	are going to have conversation.

[Page 108] 1 T. Galati 2 They wouldn't be able to gage 3 community reaction to overseas or local 4 events. In a , you would have 5 more people. When they check it as a 6 location of concern, concern is not 7 necessarily indicating that that's a place 8 that there's an investigation or should be 9 an investigation. 10 A concern is their way of saying 11 this is a place that we could go back to if 12 we need to find something within the 13 community. 14 0 Of concern, that phrase or of 15 interest or whatever it is, let's say of 16 concern, is that phrase used differently in 17 relation to commercial establishment say in 18 relation to mosques? 19 MR. FARRELL: Objection. 20 I believe that we make locations Α of concern for commercial establishments. 21 22 It's not our policy to make locations of 23 concern religious establishments. That 24 being said, I can't tell you that that term 25 has never been used for a mosque.

7	Q Take a look at 164 actually. Let
8	me give you a different one. Take a look at

10	A Yes.
11	Q ?
12	A Yes.
13	Q Here is a second a , a
14	It's been checked
15	as not a location of concern, right?

	3	Q Here, in January of 2010, two
	4	. They are saying
	5	one is a location of concern, the other one
	6	is not a location of concern. Are the
	7	officers making a judgement about whether a
	8	place is a location of concern based on the
	9	visit that they make, the Zone Assessment
	10	officers?
	11	A Again, I will go back to the term
	12	of concern. The term location of concern is
	13	a place that we can go to that if there's an
	14	event and we needed to overhear something or
	15	get the feeling of community reaction to an
	16	event, overseeing that that happened and
	17	occurred here, where would we go to hear or
	18	get a feel for what's going on?
	19	The only judgement that they are
	20	making is that this is a location where we
	21	may be able to hear something.
	22	This is not one location is in
	23	, which may or may not be in the
	24	middle of a area and one area is
	25	in a more densely area.

Case 22a3e: v1431688SDD6v10AenD0031121620826 Fileage/25313 Page Fileabf07303720124D: 370 [Page 111] 1 T. Galati Their judgement is, if we need to 2 3 -- this would be a better place for us to 4 hear. It has nothing to do with 5 investigation, just where would we deploy if 6 we needed to get a reaction, if we needed to 7 get a issue. 8 MR. FARRELL: Where? 9 The first one is 101. I would Α like to add to that last conversation. 10 If 11 you look at the occupancy, the occupancy of 12 the location that is not of concern has 13 seating for 10 to 15 customers where the 14 location that they have has seating for a capacity of 60 to 65 people. 15 Take a look at 639. You see 16 Q 17 there's a notation that the owner is a ? 19 А Yes. 20 Is that something that was 0 21 furnished to the assigned officer in way of 22 information when the assignment was made? 23 Α No. 24 Would you say that that's 0 25 something that the assigned officer would

3	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
4	MR. EISENSTEIN: It's a stupid
5	question. Let me ask it a different
6	way.
7	Q Is that personal knowledge that
8	that assigned officer is bringing to the

10	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
11	A The officers assigned to the
12	Demographics Unit, Zone Assessment Unit,
13	they have language skills. Maybe some of
14	them are also born in these countries. They
15	speak the language, they can determine
16	things that maybe I can't determine.

FARRELL: It's my notes 6 comparing documents to each other. 7 Q If you look at 639 and 411, but 8 as you may recall, I don't have copies of 9 these. 10 MR. FARRELL: Can you pass us 11 back 639? 12 MR. EISENSTEIN: Certainly. 13 According to my reading of these Q documents, this place 14 was 15 visited by the Zone Assessment Unit on 16 January 5, 2010, January 8, 2010 and again 17 on January 19, 2010. 18 What was January 8th? Α 19 In the 411, there's a reference 0 20 to two reported ID's and it says visited 21 1/5, and 1/8, maybe in the narrative. So 22 here's the location: It's , it's . It's a . It's relatively 23 24 large, so it's clearly a place where people 25 would gather. All of that is known or

[Page 114] 1 T. Galati 2 knowable in the visit of January 5th. 3 My question is, for what reason 4 is the Zone Assessment Unit going back to 5 this particular place three times within 6 2 weeks? 7 Α I can't give you a definite 8 answer why they went back three times. I 9 would say, it's not their job to monitor 10 locations. Their job is to go when we tell 11 them to go for community reaction and I 12 can't definitively tell you. 13 It may have been an issue related 14 to a event. They wanted to go to 15 location to overhear something. а 16 They may have gone to numerous 17 They may have been working in that 18 particular event. 19 I will tell you definitively they 20 are not monitoring locations. They are not 21 going back to locations because they are 22 monitoring those locations. 23 Do you see any reference in any 0 24 of the reports about that particular 25 location, any of these three reports to any

2	specific World event or local event?
3	A I do not see reference to it, but
4	it does not mean they weren't deployed based
5	on that. There are events that are big
6	events and we decide to make I decide to
7	make them go to a particular area because of
8	the event that involves a particular
9	community.
10	There are times when there are
11	smaller events that officers from
12	or that might pick up local
13	things. What I mean, local from that
14	country that they say, hey, this happened in
15	, maybe we should go to a
16	area.
17	A sergeant may make that decision
18	and he would deploy them because the
19	sergeant does have the discretion unless he
20	gets a specific assignment from me to go to
21	a particular region to check on locations,
22	to make sure they haven't changed. So they
23	follow their own current event that happened
24	in the World and you the sergeant says

I take it that it doesn't relate 6 0 7 to the fact that the proprietaries of the 8 places identified as a 9 ? 10 Α is not a 11 designated terrorist organization as far as 12 I know. 15	Q Are the officers of the Zone

17	locations in their communities, instructed
18	that they are not affiliated with the NYPD?
19	A Yes.
20	Q So, that we might find some of
21	the repeated places where the food is good?
22	A I'm not telling you that's the
23	reason. I am telling you that the reality
24	is that I have talked to people that they
25	have indicated that this is a place that

9	Q If you would take a look at the

13	there's a rhetoric level two?
14	MR. FARRELL: Can we identify

18	Q Do you see the rhetoric level one
19	and rhetoric level two?
20	A Yes.
21	Q Have you seen what those
22	categories are used before?
23	A This is prior to my assignment.
24	However, I have heard of level of rhetoric
25	that was used for a short period of time.

2	Q Were there some written
3	guidelines about rhetoric levels?
4	A I'm not sure if there's written
5	guidelines or not. We presently do not use
6	and have not used it since I'm here.
7	Q Are you able to tell me where
8	you've seen it used other than Exhibit 6?
9	A I believe during my prep, there
10	was discussion that I asked a question about
11	this, where I was told that at one point
12	there were levels of rhetoric that they
13	used.
14	Q Do you know who told you that?
15	A Sergeant Matha, M-A-T-H-A.

5	A None of this is from the Zone

8	clarify one thing about this report?
9	Rhetoric, that was used very
10	early on when the unit first started and it
11	was stopped at some point. I think it's
12	important on this document that you're
13	showing me and I don't know what the date
14	is. It says 2006 here.
15	This information was not

19	everybody understands that this is not

3	MR. FARRELL: Objection.
4	A If there was something that was
5	recorded by the Demographics Unit that
6	raised to the level that it needed to be

9	generated to the officer's attention, my

12	I could tell you that I have

23	Those are the questions that I'm asking.
24	A Presently?
25	Q Yes.
[Page 125] 1 T. 16	Do they do it everyday? Do they
17	do it on a weekly basis?
18	A When they get back to where they
19	were, they prepare an electronic what we
20	call a DD five form, what they did for the
21	day, for the visit.
22	Q They do that each day now?
23	A Yes.

8	Q To your knowledge, has any
9	supervisor ever eliminated material from a
10	report prepared by a zone and assessment
11	unit officer because it was not related to
12	potential, unlawful activity of terrorism?
13	Q To my knowledge, I am not aware
14	of that, but I can't say that that hasn't
15	happened. I'm not aware of that.
16	Q Do the supervisors in the Zone
17	Assessment Unit have any instructions based
18	on relating to section 882 of the Handschu
19	Guidelines?
20	In other words, let me ask it in
21	a different way. Are the supervisors
22	instructed to look out for the retention of
23	material, retention of information that's
24	not related to potential unlawful or
25	terrorist activity?

[Page 128] 1 2 The supervisors are aware of the Α procedure, the 882 and they're aware of the 3 4 Handschu Guidelines in 882. 5 We have a review process that we 6 use where the reports get looked at, and if 7 there's an issue related to that, it would 8 be addressed in a training method. 9 0 Who conducts the review in that 10 review process? 11 One of the people that review it Α is our legal staff. 12 13 That's the legal staff of the Q 14 Intelligence Division? 15 Α Yes. 16 Are they civilian employees or Q 17 members of the force? 18 Both. Α 19 To your knowledge, has the legal 0 20 staff of the Intelligence Division ever 21 directed or caused the removal of material 22 from a Zone Assessment Unit report because 23 it was not related to potential unlawful or 24 terrorist activity? 25 Α The review process that they have

2	is done after the report is prepared. So,
3	if they seen something that they felt should
4	be addressed, it would be addressed in a

Informant: NYPD paid me to 'bait' Muslims

By ADAM GOLDMAN and MATT APUZZO

Oct. 23, 2012

NEW YORK — A paid informant for the New York Police Department's intelligence unit was under orders to "bait" Muslims into saying inflammatory things as he lived a double life, snapping pictures inside mosques and collecting the names of innocent people attending study groups on Islam, he told The Associated Press.

Shamiur Rahman, a 19-year-old American of Bangladeshi descent who has now denounced his work as an informant, said police told him to embrace a strategy called "create and capture." He said it involved creating a conversation about jihad or terrorism, then capturing the response to send to the NYPD. For his work, he earned as much as $1,000 a month and goodwill from the police after a string of minor marijuana arrests.

"We need you to pretend to be one of them," Rahman recalled the police telling him. "It's street theater."

Rahman said he now believes his work as an informant against Muslims in New York was "detrimental to the Constitution." After he disclosed to friends details about his work for the police — and after he told the police that he had been contacted by the AP — he stopped receiving text messages from his NYPD handler, "Steve," and his handler's NYPD phone number was disconnected.

Rahman's account shows how the NYPD unleashed informants on Muslim neighborhoods, often without specific targets or criminal leads. Much of what Rahman said represents a tactic the NYPD has denied using.

The AP corroborated Rahman's account through arrest records and weeks of text messages between Rahman and his police handler. The AP also reviewed the photos Rahman sent to police. Friends confirmed College in New York. Rahman, a 19-year-old American of Bengali descent who has now denounced his work, was a paid informant for the New York Police Department's intelligence unit was under orders to "bait" Muslims into saying bad things as he lived a double life, snapping pictures inside mosques and collecting the names of innocent people attending study groups on Islam, he told The Associated Press. (AP Photo/Courtesy of Jamill Noorata)

Rahman was at certain events when he said he was there, and former NYPD officials, while not personally familiar with Rahman, said the tactics he described were used by informants.

Informants like Rahman are a central component of the NYPD's wide-ranging programs to monitor life in Muslim neighborhoods since the 2001 terrorist attacks. Police officers have eavesdropped inside Muslim businesses, trained video cameras on mosques and collected license plates of worshippers. Informants who trawl the mosques — known informally as "mosque crawlers" — tell police what the imam says at sermons and provide police lists of attendees, even when there's no evidence they committed a crime.

The programs were built with unprecedented help from the CIA.

Police recruited Rahman in late January, after his third arrest on misdemeanor drug charges, which Rahman believed would lead to serious legal consequences. An NYPD plainclothes officer approached him in a Queens jail and asked whether he wanted to turn his life around.

The next month, Rahman said, he was on the NYPD's payroll.

NYPD spokesman Paul Browne did not immediately return a message seeking comment on Tuesday. He has denied widespread NYPD spying, saying police only follow leads.

In an Oct. 15 interview with the AP, however, Rahman said he received little training and spied on "everything and anyone." He took pictures inside the many mosques he visited and eavesdropped on imams. By his own measure, he said he was very good at his job and his handler never once told him he was collecting too much, no matter whom he was spying on.

Rahman said he thought he was doing important work protecting New York City and considered himself a hero.

One of his earliest assignments was to spy on a lecture at the Muslim Student Association at John Jay College of Criminal Justice in Manhattan. The speaker was Ali Abdul Karim, the head of security at the Masjid At-Taqwa mosque in Brooklyn. The NYPD had been concerned about Karim for years and already had infiltrated the mosque, according to NYPD documents obtained by the AP.

1/24/13 Case as the 2 1/24/13 Case as the 2

Rahman also was instructed to monitor the student group itself, though he wasn't told to target anyone specifically. His NYPD handler, Steve, told him to take pictures of people at the events, determine who belonged to the student association and identify its leadership.

On Feb. 23, Rahman attended the event with Karim and listened, ready to catch what he called a "speaker's gaffe." The NYPD was interested in buzz words such as "jihad" and "revolution," he said. Any radical rhetoric, the NYPD told him, needed to be reported.

John Jay president Jeremy Travis said Tuesday that police had not told the school about the surveillance. He did not say whether he believed the tactic was appropriate.

"As an academic institution, we are committed to the free expression of ideas and to creating a safe learning environment for all of our students," he said in a written statement. "We are working closely with our Muslim students to affirm their rights and to reassure them that we support their organization and freedom to assemble."

Talha Shahbaz, then the vice president of the student group, met Rahman at the event. As Karim was finishing his talk on Malcolm X's legacy, Rahman told Shahbaz that he wanted to know more about the student group. They had briefly attended the same high school in Queens.

Rahman said he wanted to turn his life around and stop using drugs, and said he believed Islam could provide a purpose in life. In the following days, Rahman friended him on Facebook and the two exchanged phone numbers. Shahbaz, a Pakistani who came to the U.S. more three years ago, introduced Rahman to other Muslims.

"He was telling us how he loved Islam and it's changing him," said Asad Dandia, who also became friends with Rahman.

Secretly, Rahman was mining his new friends for details about their lives, taking pictures of them when they ate at restaurants and writing down license plates on the orders of the NYPD.

On the NYPD's instructions, he went to more events at John Jay, including when Siraj Wahhaj spoke in May. Wahhaj, 62, is a prominent but controversial New York imam who has attracted the attention of authorities for years. Prosecutors included his name on a 3 ¹/₂-page list of people they said "may be alleged as co-conspirators" in the 1993 World Trade Center bombing, though he was never charged. In 2004, the NYPD placed Wahhaj on an internal terrorism watch list and noted: "Political ideology moderately radical and anti-American."

Rahman said he kept an eye on the MSA and used Shahbaz and his friends to facilitate traveling to events organized by the Islamic Circle of North America and Muslim American Society. The society's annual convention in Hartford, Connecticut, draws a large number of Muslims and plenty of attention from the NYPD. According to NYPD documents obtained by the AP, the NYPD sent three informants there in 2008 and was keeping tabs on the group's former president.

^{1/24/13} Case as told to spy on the speakers and collect information. The conference was dubbed "Defending Religious Freedom." Shahbaz paid Rahman's travel expenses.

Rahman, who was born in Queens, said he never witnessed any criminal activity or saw anybody do anything wrong.

He said he sometimes intentionally misinterpreted what people had said. For example, Rahman said he would ask people what they thought about the attack on the U.S. Consulate in Libya, knowing the subject was inflammatory. It was easy to take statements out of context, he said. He said wanted to please his NYPD handler, whom he trusted and liked.

Rahman said police never discussed the activities of the people he was assigned to target for spying. He said police told him once, "We don't think they're doing anything wrong. We just need to be sure."

On some days, Rahman's spent hours and covered miles (kilometers) in his undercover role. On Sept. 16, for example, he made his way in the morning to the Al Farooq Mosque in Brooklyn, snapping photographs of an imam and the sign-up sheet for those attending a regular class on Islamic instruction. He also provided their cell phone numbers to the NYPD. That evening he spied on people at Masjid Al-Ansar, also in Brooklyn.

Text messages on his phone showed that Rahman also took pictures last month of people attending the 27th annual Muslim Day Parade in Manhattan. The parade's grand marshal was New York City Councilman Robert Jackson.

Rahman said he eventually tired of spying on his friends, noting that at times they delivered food to needy Muslim families. He said he once identified another NYPD informant spying on him. He took $200 more from the NYPD and told them he was done as an informant. He said the NYPD offered him more money, which he declined. He told friends on Facebook in early October that he had been a police spy but had quit. He also traded Facebook messages with Shahbaz, admitting he had spied on students at John Jay.

"I was an informant for the NYPD, for a little while, to investigate terrorism," he wrote on Oct. 2. He said he no longer thought it was right. Perhaps he had been hunting terrorists, he said, "but I doubt it."

Shahbaz said he forgave Rahman.

"I hated that I was using people to make money," Rahman said. "I made a mistake."

NYPD built secret files on mosques

ADAM GOLDMAN and MATT APUZZO

Feb. 22, 2012 NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Americans living and working in New Jersey's largest city were subjected to surveillance as part of the New York Police Department's effort to build databases of where Muslims work, shop and pray. The operation in Newark was so secretive even the city's mayor says he was kept in the dark.

For months in mid-2007, plainclothes officers from the NYPD's Demographics Units fanned out across Newark, taking pictures and eavesdropping on conversations inside businesses owned or frequented by Muslims.

The result was a 60-page report, obtained by The Associated Press, containing brief summaries of businesses and their clientele. Police also photographed and mapped 16 mosques, listing them as "Islamic Religious Institutions."

The report cited no evidence of terrorism or criminal behavior. It was a guide to Newark's Muslims.

According to the report, the operation was carried out in collaboration with the Newark Police Department, which at the time was run by a former high-ranking NYPD official. But Newark's mayor, Cory Booker, said he never authorized the spying and was never told about it.

"Wow," he said as the AP laid out the details of the report. "This raises a number of concerns. It's just very, very sobering."

Police conducted similar operations outside their jurisdiction in New York's Suffolk and Nassau counties on suburban Long Island, according to police records.

Such surveillance has become commonplace in New York City in the decade since the 2001 terrorist attacks. Police have built databases showing where Muslims live, where they buy groceries, even what Internet cafes they use and where they watch sports. Dozens of mosques and student groups have been infiltrated and police have built detailed profiles of ethnic communities, from Moroccans to Egyptians to Albanians.

The documents obtained by the AP show, for the first time in any detail, how those efforts stretched outside the NYPD's jurisdiction. New Jersey and Long Island residents had no reason to suspect the NYPD was watching them. And since the NYPD isn't accountable to their votes or tax dollars, those non-New Yorkers had little recourse to stop it.

"All of these are innocent people," Nagiba el-Sioufi of Newark said while her husband, Mohammed, flipped through the NYPD report, looking at photos of mosques and storefronts frequented by their friends.

Egyptian immigrants and American citizens, the couple raised two daughters in the United States. Mohammed works as an accountant and is vice president of the Islamic Culture Center, a mosque a few blocks from Newark City Hall.

"If you have an accusation on us, then spend the money on doing this to us," Nagiba said. "But you have no accusation."

The Newark chief at the time, Chief Garry McCarthy, is now in charge of the Chicago Police Department. Reached on his cell phone Wednesday and asked about the report, McCarthy responded, "There's nothing to comment on," and hung up.

NYPD spokesman Paul Browne did not return a message seeking comment about the report.

The goal of the report, like others the Demographics Unit compiled, was to give police attheir-fingertips access to information about Muslim neighborhoods. If police got a tip about an Egyptian terrorist in the area, for instance, they wanted to immediately know where he was likely to find a cheap room to rent, where he might buy his lunch and at what mosque he probably would attend Friday prayers.

"These locations provide the maximum ability to assess the general opinions and general activity of these communities," the Newark report said.

The effect of the program was that hundreds of American citizens were cataloged — sometimes by name, sometimes simply by their businesses and their ethnicity — in secret police files that spanned hundreds of pages:

- "A Black Muslim male named Mussa was working in the rear of store," an NYPD detective wrote after a clandestine visit to a dollar store in Shirley, N.Y., on Long Island.

— "The manager of this restaurant is an Indian Muslim male named Vicky Amin" was the report back from an Indian restaurant in Lindenhurst, N.Y., also on Long Island.

- "Owned and operated by an African Muslim (possibly Sudanese) male named Abdullah Ddita" was the summary from another dollar store in Shirley, N.Y., just off the highway on the way to the Hamptons, the wealthy Long Island getaway.

In one report, an officer describes how he put people at ease by speaking in Punjabi and Urdu, languages commonly spoken in Pakistan.

Last summer, when the AP first began reporting about the NYPD's surveillance efforts, New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg said his police do not consider religion in their policing.

On Tuesday, following an AP story that showed the NYPD monitored Muslim student groups around the Northeast, school leaders including Yale president Richard Levin expressed outrage over the tactics. Bloomberg fired back in what was the most vigorous defense yet of "The police department goes where there are allegations. And they look to see whether those allegations are true," he told reporters. "That's what you'd expect them to do. That's what you'd want them to do. Remind yourself when you turn out the light tonight."

There are no allegations of terrorism in the Demographics Unit reports and the documents make clear that police were only interested in locations frequented by Muslims. The canvas of businesses in Newark mentions Islam and Muslims 27 times. In one section of the report, police wrote that the largest immigrant groups in Newark were from Portugal and Brazil. But they did not photograph businesses or churches for those groups.

"No Muslim component within these communities was identified," police wrote, except for one business owned by a Brazilian Muslim of Palestinian descent.

Polls show that most New Yorkers strongly support the NYPD's counterterrorism efforts and don't believe police unfairly target Muslims. The Muslim community, however, has called for Police Commissioner Ray Kelly's resignation over the spying and the department's screening of a video that portrays Muslims as wanting to dominate the United States.

In Newark, the report was met with a mixture of confusion and anger.

"Come, look at yourself on film," Abdul Kareem Abdullah called to his wife as he flipped through the NYPD files at the lunch counter of their restaurant, Hamidah's Cafe.

An American-born citizen who converted to Islam decades ago, Abdullah said he understands why, after the 9/11 terror attacks, people are afraid of Muslims. But he said he wishes the police would stop by, say hello, meet him and his customers and get to know them. The documents show police have no interest in that, he said.

"They just want to keep tabs on us," he said. "If they really wanted to understand, they'd come talk to us."

After the AP approached Booker, he said the mayor's office had launched an investigation.

"We're going to get to the bottom of this," he said.

Booker met with Islamic leaders while campaigning for mayor. Those interviewed by the AP said they wanted to believe he didn't authorize the spying but wanted to hear from him directly.

"I have to look in his eyes," Mohammed el-Sioufi said at his mosque. "I know him. I met him. He was here."

Ironically, because officers conducted the operation covertly, the reports contain mistakes that could have been easily corrected had the officers talked to store owners or imams. If police ever had to rely on the database during an unfolding terrorism emergency as they had planned, those errors would have hindered their efforts.

For instance, locals said several businesses identified as belonging to African-American

^{1/24/13} Case as to 2 14-153801-SDocuMent: 00301116708268¹⁹ Piage 01625/13Date Gildof 07/Pag2004400 Muslims actually were owned by Afghans or Pakistanis. El-Sioufi's mosque is listed as an African-American mosque, but he said the imam is from Egypt and the congregation is a roughly even mix of black converts and people of foreign ancestries.

"We're not trying to hide anything. We are out in the open," said Abdul A. Muhammad, the imam of the Masjid Ali Muslim mosque in Newark. "You want to come in? We have an open door policy."

By choosing instead to conduct such widespread surveillance, Mohammed el-Sioufi said, police send the message that the whole community is suspect.

"When you spy on someone, you are kind of accusing them. You are not accepting them for choosing Islam," Nagiba el-Sioufi said. "This doesn't say, 'This guy did something wrong.' This says, 'Everyone here is a Muslim.""

"It makes you feel uncomfortable, like this is not your country," she added. "This is our country."

Mayor Bloomberg defends NYPD spying on Muslims calling it legal, appropriate and constitutional

'We don't target individuals based on race or religion. We follow leads' Bloomberg said

BY TINA MOORE, ROCCO PARASCANDOLA AND CORKY SIEMASZKO / NEW YORK DAILY NEWS FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 2012, 12:36 PM

NYC Mayor Bloomberg sw atted aw ay criticism of NYPD spying on Muslims during an appearance on WOR radio.

Mayor Bloomberg went to bat Friday for the embattled NYPD, vigorously defending the police department's spying on Muslims in the city — and across the river in Newark — as necessary in a post 9/11 world.

"Everything the NYPD has done is legal, it is appropriate, it is constitutional," the mayor said. "They are permitted to travel beyond the border of New York City to investigate cases."

"We don't target individuals based on race or religion. We follow leads."

And anybody who thinks the vigilance of New York's finest ends where another municipality's border begins is being "naive," Bloomberg said on the John Gambling show on WOR radio.

Newark, in particular, was a staging area for the Sept. 11 attacks, hizzoner said.

"The 9/11 Commission report said the hijackers often traveled to and from New Jersey and Muhammed Atta, the ringleader of the attacks, often met with others in Newark to coordinate and plan the attacks, including which flights to hijack," Bloomberg said.

"The NYPD is trying to stop terrorism in the entire region," the mayor added. "If we knew of a threat in Newark, we wouldn't say, 'Oh that's yours, you worry about it."

Bloomberg said their "primary objective is to prevent things from happening."

"We have not let down our guard," he said. "We take the threats of today just as seriously as the threats of Sept. 12 2001. We have not forgotten the lesson of that terrible day on 9/11."

So surveillance is necessary - even when no immediate threat has been detected.

"When there's no lead it's just you're trying to get familiar with what's going on and where people might go and where people might be," he said. "If they're going to give a public speech you want to know where they do it."

Bloomberg launched his defense a day after the NYPD defended itself against accusations that it violated the law by spying on Muslims.

Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly said Friday he believes the public is on their side.

"If you poll these issues they don't seem to be an unpopular position on the part of most of the public," Kelly said. "We're going to continue to do what we have to do to protect the city."

The spying charges were stoked by a series of Associated Press reports detailing how cops monitored Muslim New Yorkers in mosques, cafes, shops and schools after the terror attacks.

The most recent Associated Press report that the NYPD monitoring had spread to Newark prompted New Jersey Sen. Robert Menendez to ask U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder and CIA chief David Petraeus to look into what New York cops were doing.

And it sparked sharp criticism of the NYPD from Newark Mayor Corey Booker, a Democrat, and even from the state's Gov. Chris Christie, a Republican who called the reports "disturbing."

"It comes with the territory that you're going to have criticism," Bloomberg said. "We obey the law and then within that context we protect you."

That said, Bloomberg admitted they had kept Booker in the dark about what the NYPD was doing.

"We did brief the Newark police department," he said. "We did not to the best of my knowledge brief Mayor Booker. So when Mayor Booker says he didn't know he's telling the truth."

Booker has said that he was never made aware of any joint NYPD-Newark P.D. probe of Muslims in the Garden State's biggest city.

On Thursday, NYPD Deputy Commissioner for Legal Matters Andrew Schaffer said New York cops could legally work outside the city if they don't exercise police powers.

City cops were restricted before 9/11 on how they monitor possible threats from within by the Handschu agreement, a 1985 consent decree that said cops could only monitor political activity if there was a suspicion of criminality — and then only with a warrant.

The court loosened the rules in 2003.

State Police (Division of NJ)

Law (Division of)

View Directive

TRENTON -- Attorney General Jeffrey S. Chiesa announced today that his office has taken steps to improve law enforcement coordination and address concerns expressed by Muslim community leaders following a three-month fact-finding review of intelligence-gathering conducted by the New York Police Department (NYPD) in New Jersey. The fact-finding review, which is on-going, has revealed no evidence to date that NYPD's activities in the state violated New Jersey civil or criminal laws.

Among the steps taken by the Office of the Attorney General are the following:

- An agreement has been reached to strengthen the lines of communication with NYPD concerning investigative activities in New Jersey related to counter-terrorism. New Jersey law enforcement officials will meet with NYPD on a regular basis to exchange information concerning counter-terrorism intelligence and operations.
- Effective immediately, by virtue of an Attorney General's Directive issued today, New Jersey law enforcement agencies have formalized notification protocols to follow when they learn of law enforcement activity being conducted by out-of-state police agencies within their jurisdictions. For counter-terrorism-related matters, the Directive establishes reporting protocols to designated personnel at the New Jersey State Police Counter-Terrorism Bureau and the Office of Homeland Security and Preparedness, for further coordination with the Joint Terrorism Task Force headed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.
- The Attorney General's Office will establish a Muslim outreach committee in order to enhance communication and encourage a greater understanding regarding issues of importance to both law enforcement and the Muslim community.

The fact-finding review conducted by the Office of the Attorney General included gathering information from individuals within the ranks of law enforcement in New Jersey, New York, and other states, as well as from civilians within the Muslim and other communities in New Jersey. The Office of the Attorney General will continue to receive and assess information relevant to the conduct at issue and cooperate with any other state or federal law enforcement agencies engaged in reviewing those matters.

Attorney General Chiesa announced the results of the fact-finding review to date after meeting earlier today with leaders from New Jersey's Muslim community at the Hughes Justice Complex in Trenton. The Attorney General explained that while, as a routine matter, law enforcement in New Jersey effectively coordinates operations to de-conflict and ensure operational safety with out-of-state law enforcement agencies, the Directive issued today will bring consistency to those reporting mechanisms based on the nature and scope of the underlying law enforcement activity. He also indicated that the Directive, as well as regular meetings with the NYPD, will enable better, and more immediate, coordination of information for purposes of conducting counter-terrorism operations.

Recognizing the unique challenges of counter-terrorism intelligence gathering and investigations, while understanding the need to safeguard the public's confidence in law enforcement's respect for fundamental civil liberties, Attorney General Chiesa said, "We remain committed to striking the appropriate balance of ensuring the safety of our citizens through vigilance in fighting terrorism, while not undermining the public's confidence in how we approach that mission."

There were no arrests.]

Most European commentators concede that the cartoons were in poor taste but argue that conservative Muslims must learn to accept Western standards of free speech and the pluralism that those standards protect.

Several accused Muslims of a double standard, noting that media in several Arab countries continue to broadcast or publish references to "The Protocols of the Elders of Zion," a notorious early 20th-century anti-Semitic hoax that presented itself as the Jews' master plan to rule the world.

Many Muslims say the Danish cartoons reinforce a dangerous confusion between Islam and the Islamist terrorism that nearly all Muslims abhor. Dalil Boubakeur, head of France's Muslim Council, called the caricatures a new sign of Europe's growing "Islamophobia."

Saudi Arabia and Syria recalled their ambassadors from Denmark, while the Danish government summoned other foreign envoys in Copenhagen to talks on Friday over the issue, having already explained that it does not control the press.

Jyllands-Posten has received two bomb threats in the past few days, despite having apologized for any hurt feelings about the drawings.

Thursday morning, about a dozen gunmen appeared at the European Union offices in Gaza, firing automatic weapons and spray-painting a warning on the outside gate. The men handed out a pamphlet warning Denmark, Norway and France that they had 48 hours to apologize.

The office, staffed then only by Palestinians, reportedly received a warning that the gunmen were coming, and was quickly closed.

In Nablus, on the West Bank, two masked gunmen kidnapped a German from a hotel, thinking he was French or Danish, Agence France-Presse reported. They turned him over to the police once they realized their mistake.

Leaders of Fatah and Hamas said they did not endorse harming any foreigners in Gaza. All the same, the threat emptied hotels there of Europeans, most of them journalists.

France Soir, the only French daily to reprint the cartoons, fired its managing editor late Wednesday as "a strong sign of respect for the beliefs and intimate convictions of every individual," according to a statement from its owner,

Raymond Lakah, an Egyptian-born French businessman.

In an editorial defending its decision to publish the cartoons, France Soir asked Thursday what would remain of "the freedom to think, speak, even to come and go," if society adhered to all of the prohibitions of the world's various religions. The result, the newspaper said, would be "the Iran of the mullahs, for example."

Afghanistan's president, Hamid Karzai, issued a statement condemning "in the strongest terms" France Soir's publication of the cartoons. "Any insult to the holy prophet (peace be upon him) is an insult to more than one billion Muslims," his statement read.

On Thursday, France's embassy in Algeria, a former colony, issued a statement condemning the publication, saying the French government was "deeply attached to the spirit of tolerance and to respect of religious belief, as we are to the principle of freedom of the press."

"In this light, France condemns all those who hurt individuals in their beliefs or religious convictions," the statement read.

Still, Europeans showed no signs of backing down. Le Monde ran a sketch of a man, presumably Muhammad, made of sentences reading, "I must not draw Muhammad."

Italian Quits Over Cartoons; 15 Die in Nigeria

By IAN FISHER

TURIN, Italy, Feb. 18 — A day after at least 11 people were killed in Libya amid continuing violence over the Danish cartoons of the Prophet Muhammad, an Italian government minister resigned Saturday for wearing a T-shirt printed with the cartoons.

[In Nigeria, Muslims protesting the cartoons attacked Christians and burned churches on Saturday, killing at least 15 people in the deadliest confrontation yet in the whirlwind of Muslim anger over the drawings, The Associated Press reported.]

The protesters in Libya, angry over the minister's T-shirt, had stormed an Italian Consulate in Benghazi on Friday and were fired on by Libyan soldiers. Here in Italy, critics of Roberto Calderoli, the reforms minister who showed off his T-shirt on television earlier this week, blamed him for the violence — and even his own political allies, including Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi, demanded his resignation.

In London, some 10,000 demonstrators marched in what was the largest of several protests there so far. And in India, a politician offered a reward for the deaths of the cartoonists.

[Mobs of Muslim protesters swarm through Maiduguri, the capital of Borno State in northeastern Nigeria, with machetes, sticks and iron rods, The A.P. said. One group threw a tire around a man, poured gas on him and set him ablaze.

[Thousands of rioters burned 15 churches in a three-hour rampage before troops and police reinforcements restored order, said a Nigerian police spokesman, Haz Iwendi. Security forces arrested dozens of people, he said.

[Chima Ezeoke, a Christian Maiduguri resident, said protesters attacked and looted shops owned by minority Christians, most of them with origins in the country's south. Witnesses said three children and a priest were among those killed.

[Thousands of people have died in that West African country since 2000 in religious violence fueled by the adoption of the strict Islamic legal code by a dozen states in the north, seen by most Christians as a move to impose religious hegemony on non-Muslims.]

"In these last days I expressed in my way solidarity with all those who have been struck by the blind violence of religious fanaticism," he said in a statement that referred to an Italian priest killed this month in Turkey by a Muslim who was reportedly angry over the cartoons. "But it was never my intention to offend the Muslim religion nor to be the pretext for the violence of yesterday," he said.

With the dispute over Mr. Calderoli's shirt, the violence over the cartoons breached Italy's domestic politics. Mr. Calderoli belongs to a far-right party, the Northern League, that is small but influential. It is a key member of Mr. Berlusconi's center-right ruling coalition.

Mr. Berlusconi and the Libyan leader Muammar el-Qaddafi discussed the demonstration by telephone, with both agreeing that it should not have "negative repercussions" on their relationship.

In Libya, the riots also claimed a political casualty. Libya's interior minister was suspended for "an excessive use of force" against the protesters there, The Associated Press reported. At least 11 people were killed in violence there on Friday.

In central London, thousands of Muslims from across Britain chanted "Allah-u akbar" ("God is great" in Arabic) and waved placards in protest of the publication of the cartoons in Danish and other European newspapers. The cartoons were shown briefly on the BBC but have not been published by British newspapers.

The protest, which gathered under Nelson's Column in Trafalgar Square, drew at least 10,000 protesters, the police said, making it the biggest of three demonstrations in London in three weeks. Referring to the cartoons, one demonstrator, Mohamed Abdul Kabir, a 23-year-old psychology student from Accrington in the northwest England, said: "It has gone beyond satire; it has gone to insult. Who defines the line where freedom stops?"

In India, a politician in the nation's largest state has offered an $11 million reward for the killing of any of the Danish cartoonists "who dared to make the caricature of the Prophet," according to Indian news media reports published Saturday. The state government official, Haji Yaqoob Quereshi, made the announcement at a rally in the north Indian town of Meerut after Friday Prayer.

State officials said he would not face charges because he was articulating his personal opinion. Demonstrations have broken out during the past several days in a number of Indian cities with large Muslim populations.

Alan Cowell contributed reporting from London for this article, and Somini Sengupta from Goa, India.

Violence flared in two cities as demonstrators rampaged through Islamabad, the capital, and Lahore in the east, vandalizing property, burning government buildings and attacking Western businesses. In Lahore, guards at a bank shot dead two people and the police struggled to control thousands of demonstrators.

Protests have continued here for weeks over cartoons published last year in a Danish newspaper that have stirred Muslims' emotions around the world. Until Tuesday, demonstrations here had been relatively peaceful.

On Tuesday morning, however, more than 3,000 students gathered in Aabpara Square and started marching toward the diplomatic enclave where most Western embassies are situated. The protesters, mostly teenage students, wielded sticks and clashed with the police while chanting slogans against Denmark and the president of Pakistan, Gen. Pervez Musharraf.

The police used tear gas to disperse the students, who threw stones and tore down portraits of General Musharraf. Interior Minister Aftab Ahmed Khan Sherpao said the protesters had no leader and were difficult to control. No major damage to Western embassies was reported.

Later, some members of Parliament staged a protest walk from Parliament to the main entrance of the diplomatic enclave.

In Lahore, capital of Punjab Province, demonstrators burned two banks and McDonald's, Pizza Hut and KFC restaurants, and set part of the provincial parliament building afire. More than 200 cars were, damaged and dozens of stores were ransacked.

News channels showed smoke billowing from damaged buildings and stick-wielding demonstrators smashing windows and clashing with the police. Protesters were seen looting an office of Telenor, a Norwegian cellphone company, and running off with computers and mobile phone accessories.

Officials said they sympathized with the protesters' emotions but did not condone the violence.

"What message are we giving out by damaging our own?" the chief minister of Punjab, Chaudhary Pervez Elahi, told a television channel. Mr. Elahi said demonstrations were allowed to be held in a peaceful manner, but had been hijacked by miscreants.

As for the shooting of protesters in Lahore, Mr. Elahi said, "Bank authorities allege that the protestors were trying to force their way into the bank."

Although the cartoons have appeared in European newspapers, demonstrators vented their anger over the United States, as well. Geo, a television channel, showed reports of a group of protesters chanting, "Bush dog!" and "Down with Bush!" before smashing vehicles and stores. Protesters across Pakistan have demanded that the government sever ties with the countries where the cartoons have appeared and expel the Danish and Norwegian envoys.

Cartoons of Prophet Met With Outrage

Depictions of Muhammad in Scandinavian Papers Provoke Anger, Protest Across Muslim World

By John Ward Anderson Washington Post Foreign Service Tuesday, January 31, 2006

PARIS, Jan. 30 -- Cartoons in Danish and Norwegian newspapers depicting the prophet Muhammad in unflattering poses, including one in which he is portrayed as an apparent terrorist with a bomb in his turban, have triggered outrage among Muslims across the Middle East, sparking protests, economic boycotts and warnings of possible retaliation against the people, companies and countries involved.

The cartoons were published in September in a conservative, mass-circulation Danish daily, Jyllands-Posten, and were reprinted three weeks ago in Magazinet, a small evangelical Christian newspaper in Norway. But the reaction has been widespread, and fallout over the images reached new levels Monday, with the European Union backing Denmark in the dispute and warning that a boycott of Danish products -- already being felt by some companies -- would violate World Trade Organization rules.

Saudi Arabia has recalled its ambassador from Denmark and Libya has closed its embassy in Copenhagen, the Danish capital. Kuwait called the cartoons "despicable racism." Iran's foreign minister termed them "ridiculous and revolting."

The cartoons included one of the prophet as a crazed, knife-wielding Bedouin and another of him at the gates of heaven telling suicide bombers: "Stop. Stop. We have run out of virgins!" -- a reference to the belief of some Muslim extremists that male suicide bombers are rewarded in heaven with 72 virgins.

Islamic critics charged that the cartoons were a deliberate provocation and insult to their religion designed to incite hatred and polarize people of different faiths. Defenders of the newspapers and artists said the 12 published cartoons simply were intended to highlight Islam's intolerance.

The controversy has pitted two newspapers championing what they say is the cause of free speech against Islam's prohibition of any artistic depiction of the prophet

Muhammad, which is considered blasphemous, no matter how benign. The clash is being fueled by a wave of anti-immigrant sentiment in staunchly secular Denmark, where many express frustration that the country's 200,000 Muslim immigrants are resisting assimilation into Danish society.

"There's widespread skepticism toward immigration and integration efforts" because of a popular belief that "immigrants are here to take advantage of the Danish system," said Ulf Hedetoft, a political scientist at Aalborg University and director of Denmark's Academy for Migration Studies.

"People are inclined to see Islam and political extremism as two sides of the same coin," he said.

In a statement, the 57-nation Organization of the Islamic Conference has condemned "the printing of blasphemous and insulting caricatures of the Prophet Mohammed," saying it "falls into the trap set up by fundamentalists and fosters acts of revenge." Protesters across the Muslim world have burned Norwegian and Danish flags and issued sharp denunciations.

The controversy began in September, after an author in Denmark complained that he could not find an artist willing, under his own name, to illustrate a book about the prophet's life.

In response, Jyllands-Posten, the conservative daily, ran 12 cartoons by various staff artists depicting Muhammad. The paper explained that the project was meant to gauge the public's response.

In the Islamic world, it was swift and furious, but in Denmark, the majority backed the paper's right to print the cartoons. A recent poll showed that 62 percent of those surveyed said the paper should not apologize.

The tumult passed, but was reignited even more furiously when Magazinet, the evangelical Christian paper in Norway, reprinted the cartoons. The editor, Vebjoern Selbekk, wrote that he was "sick of the ongoing hidden erosion of the freedom of expression." He told the Reuters news agency that he had received 15 death threats and more than 1,000 hate letters.

The Danish Foreign Ministry late Sunday issued a statement warning its citizens in nine Middle Eastern countries and the Palestinian territories to "show extra vigilance" because of the "strong negative feelings" sparked by the uproar.

Meanwhile, a Denmark-based dairy group, Arla Foods -- which according to a statement on its Web site sells about $421 million annually in the Middle East and has about 1,000 employees there -- said that sales had come to a "standstill" across the region.

The newspapers have issued explanations but have couched their apologies. "We are sorry if Muslims have been offended," Jyllands' editor in chief, Carsten Juste, told the Associated Press, adding that the newspapers actions were "within the constitution, the Danish penal code and international convention. . . . It is not a dictatorship like Saudi Arabia that is going to dictate our editorial line here in Denmark."

Norway described the cartoons as "unfortunate and deplorable." Danish Prime Minister Anders Fogh Rasmussen has refused to apologize. In a recent speech, without mentioning the controversy, he denounced "any expression, action of indication that attempts to demonize groups of people on the basis of the religion or ethnic background." But he added that "freedom of speech is absolute. It is not negotiable."

"The question here is how far do you show sensitivity and self-control over issues without falling into self-censorship," said Medhi Mozaffari, a professor at Aarhus University in Denmark, who defended his government's stance not to apologize.

"It's unthinkable that the prime minister would make an apology," he said. "This is Islamists putting democracies on trial to see how far they can be pressured."
